I am pleased to submit this report on the administration of the Victorian State election held on 27 November 2010.

The report is in two parts. Part 1 provides a descriptive analysis of the conduct of the election and key statistics. Also included in Part 1 are a number of recommendations for consideration by Parliament.

Part 2 contains detailed results for each electorate.

The report is presented in accordance with section 8(2)(b) of the Electoral Act 2002.

Foreword

The conduct of the election of the 57th Victorian Parliament brought opportunities, challenges and a great sense of achievement to the Victorian Electoral Commission.

The legislated timing of the election enabled the VEC to be 'election ready', developing and maintaining an extensive and rigorous Election Plan, which was published early, revisited and reviewed regularly. The State Election Plan guided the VEC in the successful delivery of electoral services to almost 3.6 million eligible electors across Victoria, within Australia and around the globe. This report outlines the conduct of the 2010 State election including the service provided to electors, registered political parties, candidates and the media, and I commend my staff for their dedication and contribution to a successful State election.

Inclement weather on Election Day presented a major challenge to electors, candidates, party workers and the VEC. An increase of almost 70% in the number of electors voting early is also noteworthy. However, special attention to planning for services to voters resulted in more staff and resources, shorter queues, faster service and more accessible voting no matter where the voter was located.

The Electoral Amendment (Electoral Participation) Act 2010, passed prior to the election, changed the ways in which people could be enrolled and how they could vote, and demonstrates the Parliament's accord with the VEC's objectives of making enrolment and voting accessible and easy.

The amendments made it possible for the VEC to develop and implement programs that helped maximise the number of eligible Victorians that are correctly enrolled, and that made voting even more accessible to a wider range of electors.

While presenting administrative and technological challenges to the VEC, it was gratifying to see that these legislative amendments provided accessible voting to people who might otherwise have been unable to participate, or for whom standard voting presents considerable difficulty.

Information and communications technology featured heavily in the VEC's response to the new legislation and again supported every aspect of the election. These two major themes — access to voting and the integration of technology into electoral services — are featured throughout this report.

The Liberal Party won 35 seats in the Legislative Assembly and the National Party won 10 seats, giving the Coalition the overall majority. The Australian Labor Party (ALP) won 43 seats.

The Liberal Party received 38.03% of first-preference votes, and the ALP received 36.25% of first-preference votes. The National Party received 6.75%. On a Coalition/Labor two-party preferred basis, the vote was 51.58% and 48.42%. The Greens received 11.21% of first preference votes for the Legislative Assembly, up from 10.04% at the 2006 State election.

Outstanding issues for the VEC and the Parliament to address are:

- The high proportion of informal votes that indicate lack of knowledge of how to vote correctly, or are blank or deliberately informal
- The turnout at elections (averaging 93.06% for the past five Victorian elections)
- How to engage all Victorians in the electoral or democratic process

While there are many reasons that could be put forward in explanation for each of these phenomena, I believe they could be effectively addressed by the VEC, with the support of the Parliament.

Programs based on solid research and culturally authentic program design, such as those implemented by the VEC's small but dynamic Community Education Team are shown to bring real results. Passport to Democracy, Homeless not Voteless, and Voting is for Everyone have had a measureable impact on the electoral engagement and knowledge of participants. Government support is critical to the success of these programs. In this report, I make a recommendation in relation to the redirection of monies, currently paid into the consolidated fund, to the support of electoral research, outreach, engagement and education.

The VEC's commitment to voter services is demonstrated by the efforts made to ensure that over 450 Victorian electors cruising aboard the Dawn Princess were able to apply for a postal vote in Melbourne, receive their ballot material at Hobart or Brisbane, and submit their votes at Brisbane or Darwin. I take this opportunity to formally express my appreciation to the Electoral Commissions who provided willing assistance with this huge logistics exercise, and for the support of State, Territory and Australian Electoral Commissions in many other aspects of the election.

With access to voting services a major VEC objective, key information was available in a variety of formats, including audio, Easy English, and other languages. A telephone enquiry service operated throughout the election period, taking over 106,000 calls, with less than one percent of all calls diverted to voicemail. In addition, the VEC embraced social media and technology offering SMS enrolment and voting reminder services, information via facebook, and an iPhone voting centre look-up application.

Some 17% of voting centres were rated as fully wheelchair accessible compared with 10.8% in 2006. I acknowledge the frustrations of electors and potential employees who have disabilities. The VEC works hard to find voting venues that are fully wheelchair accessible. We will continue to work with our Electoral Access Advisory Group and other agencies to develop workable solutions.

A key component of the 'Every Vote will Shape Victoria' communication campaign was the EasyVote Guide, which was mailed to every elector on the enrolment register prior to Election Day. The EasyVote Guide contained elector and electorate details, and also provided information on when, how and where people could cast their vote.

An exciting new electoral education resource was the Election Roadshow. Launched at the Royal Melbourne Show, and travelling to shopping centres and agricultural shows, the Election Roadshow provided electoral information, education and interactive displays to communities in targeted areas of metropolitan and Regional Victoria. In addition, an expanded education and community engagement focus delivered tailored information, enrolment and mobile voting sessions to Aboriginal, CALD, homeless and prisoner groups.

New legislation enabled the expansion of electronically assisted voting (EAV) to include not only electors who are blind or who have a vision-impairment, but also those with low proficiency in English or literacy difficulties, and electors with a motor impairment. This major initiative attracted nearly five times more voters than the e-voting pilot program at the 2006 State election. While the numbers may appear small, I am confident EAV will prove to be a major force in the delivery of the secret ballot to electors who could otherwise be disenfranchised.

The VEC was very pleased with its performance in conducting the 2010 State election, and this is supported by the results of independent surveys conducted on and after Election Day. The full evaluation report is available on our website.

The outcome of the election meant close scrutiny, an anxious wait for results, and pressure on election staff to finalise counts quickly while maintaining the highest levels of accuracy. Rechecking of all Upper House ballot papers at a Regional level resulted in a smooth and speedy computer count of ballot papers marked below the line, and no recounts were requested or required. All counts were conducted in a timely manner prior to the return of the writ, with no resulting applications for appeal lodged with the Court of Disputed Returns.

The VEC administers the law as passed by Parliament, and must remain neutral on certain policy matters such as compulsory voting and methods of voting. This report highlights matters relating to election administration and the responsibilities of the VEC. The report provides information on the impact of current laws and contains a number of recommendations for the Parliament to consider.

Voting system

The Victorian Parliament is made up of two Houses — the Legislative Assembly (Lower House) and the Legislative Council (Upper House). Members of the Legislative Assembly are elected from 88 single-member electoral Districts, each with approximately 38,000 electors. A party or coalition with the majority support in the Legislative Assembly forms the Government.

The voting system for the Legislative Assembly is full preferential. Voters must number all the squares on the ballot paper in order of their choice. To be elected a candidate must gain more than 50% of all formal votes to be elected. If none of the candidates receives over 50% of the first-preference votes, voters' preferences are distributed until one candidate gains an absolute majority. Voting is compulsory at Victorian State elections.

Members of the Legislative Council are elected from eight electoral Regions, each with approximately 418,000 electors. Each region returns five elected members.

Proportional representation vote counting for the Legislative Council was introduced in 2006. The principle of proportional representation is that candidates and parties are elected in proportion to their level of support among voters. Under this system, voters can:

- Vote 1 'above-the-line' for their preferred party or group of candidates (the voter's preferences will follow the group voting tickets lodged by the party or group); or
- Vote 'below-the-line' for individual candidates. Voters have to vote at least 1 to 5 for their vote to count, and can continue numbering other squares if they wish. This is known as optional preferential voting.

Under the proportional representation vote counting system, a candidate must gain a 'quota' (one sixth plus one) of the formal votes to be elected. First, candidates who have gained more than a quota of first-preference votes are elected. Then, elected candidates' surplus votes (the number of votes more than the quota) are transferred to other candidates according to the preferences on the ballot papers. Any candidate who reaches a quota through these transfers is elected. If there are still vacancies to fill once the surplus votes have been transferred, the candidate with the fewest votes is excluded and that candidate's votes are distributed to the remaining candidates according to the preferences on the ballot papers. The process of transferring surpluses from elected candidates and distributing preferences from excluded candidates continues until all positions have been filled.

The Victorian Electoral Commission

The Victorian Electoral Commission's (VEC's) responsibility is to conduct fair and impartial elections, efficiently and according to the law. The Electoral Commissioner is appointed by the Governor-in-Council for a ten-year term. Under the Electoral Act 2002 (the Act), the Electoral Commissioner is independent of the government of the day and reports directly to Parliament.

The key responsibilities of the VEC are to:

- Conduct parliamentary elections and by-elections
- Conduct parliamentary referendums and polls
- Conduct local government elections and by-elections (following a competitive tendering process)
- Conduct electoral representation reviews and subdivision reviews for local councils
- Conduct certain statutory elections
- Provide advice to the Attorney-General and Parliament on issues affecting the conduct of parliamentary elections, including administrative issues requiring legislative remedy
- Ensure the enrolment of eligible electors
- Prepare electoral rolls for parliamentary elections, voters' lists for local government elections, jury lists, and provide enrolment information to members of parliament and registered political parties
- Contribute to public understanding and awareness of elections and electoral matters through information and education programs
- Provide administrative and technical support to the Electoral Boundaries Commission during the review and drawing of state electoral boundaries
- Report to Parliament on the VEC's activities

Governing legislation

The work of the VEC is governed by legislation that includes:

- The Electoral Act 2002: Victoria's principal electoral Act, prescribing the enrolment system and the conduct of parliamentary elections
- The Constitution Act 1975: sets out who is entitled to enrol as an elector, who is entitled to be elected to Parliament, and the size and term of Parliament
- The Electoral Boundaries Commission Act 1982: governs the determination of State electoral boundaries

Legislative changes affecting the 2010 Victorian State election

Automatic enrolment

Prior to the passing of the EA Act, the only way to enrol was for a person to fill in and sign an enrolment form and send it to an electoral commission. The VEC is now able to use information it holds to enrol people who have turned 18. The VEC writes to people it has enrolled, informing them of their enrolment and giving them an opportunity to correct any mistake. Initially, the VEC enrolled VCE students who had turned 18 years of age, using information supplied by the Victorian Curriculum and Assessment Authority. This will be expanded to other agencies during 2011.

Enrolment at voting centres

People who were found not to be enrolled when they attended to vote at this election were able to enrol and cast a provisional vote at a voting centre. They were required to show a proof of identification such as a driver's licence or to nominate a service provider to be contacted to verify identity. After Election Day, the VEC checked the enrolment applications and verified identities and addresses with service providers, and, if everything was satisfactory, enrolled the applicants and admitted their votes to scrutiny at the election.

Electronically assisted voting

At the 2006 State election, electors who are blind or have low vision were able to vote electronically. For 2010, electors with language or literacy difficulties and those with motor skill impairment were also able to cast an electronically assisted vote. Electronically assisted voting using a telephone or touchscreen was available at 100 early voting centres within Victoria in the two weeks before Election Day.

Abolition of three month rule

Under the 'three month rule' electors who had changed their principal place of residence more than three months before Election Day without updating their enrolment were unable to vote. Abolition of this rule enables all electors on the roll to vote for the district at which they are enrolled.

How-to-vote cards

Under the new legislation, the VEC is required to display all registered how-to-vote cards on its website as soon as possible after they are registered.

Group voting tickets

Upper House groups of candidates are able to amend or withdraw their request to be a group on the ballot paper up to 24 hours before the close of nominations. However, a group that is established at that point is required to lodge a group voting ticket (setting out the order of voting preferences for 'above the line' votes for that group) with the VEC. Previously, lodgement of a group voting ticket was optional.

Authorisation of letters and cards

Letters and cards bearing the name and address of the sender, that did not contain an example of how to complete the ballot paper no longer had to be duly authorised.

Acceptance of postal vote declarations

Under the new legislation, if a postal vote declaration envelope is postmarked the Sunday after Election Day, the VEC is permitted to use the date of the witness's signature on the declaration to determine whether the vote should be included in the count.

Regulatory changes affecting the 2010 Victorian State election

In September 2010, the Electoral Amendment (Electoral Participation) Regulations 2010 came into operation.

The purpose of the regulations was to:

- Make miscellaneous consequential amendments to the Electoral Regulations 2002 as a result of the enactment of the Electoral Amendment (Electoral Participation) Act 2010. Most notably for the 2010 election, the regulations made changes to the terminology relating to unenrolled/provisional voters
- Provide for the procedures to apply in respect of electronic voting at an overseas or interstate early voting centre in accordance with section 100 of the Electoral Act 2002
- Make minor technical amendments to improve the operation of the Electoral Regulations 2002

Issue of the writs

The Governor issued writs for the 2010 Victorian State election at 6.00pm on Tuesday, 2 November 2010. The issue of the writs is a legal requirement and sets out the timetable of the election. One writ is issued for the election of the Legislative Council and one for the election of the Legislative Assembly.

At the issue of the writs, there were 11 registered political parties. At close of nominations there were 711 candidates, compared with 707 in 2006. Ten of the eleven registered political parties contested at least one electorate.

Election timetable

The Victorian State election timeline is set in legislation. The Constitution Act 1975 prescribes that, barring exceptional circumstances, the Victorian State election is to be held on the last Saturday in November every four years.

The trigger for a State election is the issue of the writs, which occurs 25 days before Election Day. The writs for a State election must be returned no later than 21 days after Election Day. The timeframe for the conduct of the 2010 State election was 46 days (33 business days).

Given this timeframe, it is essential that planning and preparation commences well in advance of the election. The lead-time for the management of the 2010 State election was 12–16 months with most major projects in place by the issue of the writs.

Business intelligence solutions for election management

Using the VEC's EMS database, the VEC implemented a business intelligence solution that provided more granular data (smaller, detailed data packets, more frequently communicated) than at past elections. This provided the VEC with enhanced information on the progress of the elections and enabled improved and more accurately targeted management of the election process.

Timeline for the 2010 Victorian State Election

Expiry of the Legislative Assembly Parliament is dissolved 25 days before the last Saturday in November.	Tuesday, 2 November
Issue of writs The issue of the writs commences the election process. The writ commands the VEC to hold an election and contains the dates for the close of rolls, the close of nominations, election day and the return of the writs. At a State election, Writs are issued for the election of all the members of the Legislative Assembly (Lower House) and for all members of the Legislative Council (Upper House).	Tuesday, 2 November
Close of rolls Electors have until 8:00pm, seven days after the writs are issued to enrol, or to update their enrolment.	Tuesday, 9 November
Close of nominations The deadline for receipt of nominations by candidates is midday on the date specified on the writ as the close of nominations. The close of nomination date differs for Registered Political Parties and independent candidates.	Thursday, 11 November for a Registered Political Party and Friday, 12 November for independent candidates
Final day for submission of How to Vote Cards for registration by the VEC	Friday, 19 November
Close of Postal Voting	Thursday, 25 November
Close of Early Voting	Friday, 26 November
Election day Election day is the day nominated for the election to be held and is the day on which most electors cast their vote.	Saturday, 27 November
Last day that votes can be admitted to scrutiny	Monday, 6 December
Return of writs After the results are declared for all Legislative Assembly and Legislative Council seats, the Victorian Electoral Commissioner returns the writs, endorsed with the names of the successful candidates, to the Governor. writs must be returned within 21 days of the date of the election.	Saturday, 18 December

Election planning

The VEC operates with a core of 54.5 full time equivalent (FTE) staff, which is supplemented by temporary and casual staff. At the time of the State election, there were 82.4 FTE positions at the VEC. In addition, contract staff were engaged to provide specialist services such as IT support, or election software development and advice. Around 20,000 people were engaged by the VEC to conduct the State election in election offices and voting centres, and to assist in the postal vote processing centre and central count centre, which operated for two weeks after the election.

There are many aspects of a State election that require the expertise of external service providers. Contracting external service providers enables VEC staff to focus on their election-specific areas of expertise, ensuring that Victorians are provided with the highest quality election services, using the latest technologies and systems.

For the 2010 State election, the VEC entered into contracts with a range of specialist service providers. Contractors were selected after a competitive tendering process, taking into account the quality of their service and value for money.

Contracted services for the State election included:

- Information technology
- Cardboard furniture (existing contract)
- Electronic voting kiosks
- Election advertising
- Public relations (request for quote)
- Telephone enquiry service
- SMS enrolment and reminder service
- Printing (existing contract)
- Transport (existing contract)
- Tally room services (request for quote)
- Count centre
- Australia post (service level agreement)
- Election staffing
- Mail house services (existing contract)

Victorian Government Solicitor's Office

The VEC made preliminary arrangements with the Victorian Government Solicitor's Office (VGSO) to have a senior legal adviser on stand-by 24 hours a day during the election period, to ensure that any matters could be dealt with in a timely fashion. The VEC would like to thank the VGSO for its support and assistance during this election.

Victoria Police

The VEC wrote to the Chief Commissioner of Police in late September, outlining the State election processes and requesting a discreet police presence at voting centres during the hours of voting on Election Day. The VEC formally records its appreciation for the support received from the Chief Commissioner and Victoria Police.

Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal

The VEC made arrangements with the Chief Executive Officer of the Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal for arrangements to be in place to deal with any applications for review of the Electoral Commissioner's decision in relation to the registration of a how-to-vote card.

Section 82A of the Electoral Act 2002 provides that if an application for review of a how-to-vote card decision is received, the Tribunal has until 5.00pm on the next working day after receiving the application to determine the application.

Supreme Court

Under section 176 of the Electoral Act 2002, candidates may seek injunctions in certain circumstances where the conduct of a person may impact on the outcome of an election. The VEC is also able to seek an injunction under the same circumstances. These matters must be heard in the Supreme Court. The Victorian Electoral Commission made arrangements with the Department of Justice to ensure any applications for an injunction received on Election Day could be heard.

Election Budget

The cost of conducting the 2010 State election was $36.618 million. An estimate for the completion of compulsory voting is included in the figure. This compares to the reported cost of the 2006 State election of $29.329 million.

Additional budget was provided to meet inflation, an increase in the number of electors and election staff, the implementation of new legislation, and the use of advanced technology to assist with the provision of electoral services. Actual expenditure will occur over three financial years; 2009-10, 2010-11 and 2011-12.

Summaries of election expenditure, candidates' deposits and election entitlements are included in Appendix 1, Appendix 2, Appendix 3 and Appendix 4.

Candidates' deposits forfeited

Of the 711 candidates, 283 forfeited their deposits, because they were not elected and/or because they, or their Upper House group, obtained less than 4% of the first-preference votes in their electorates. The following table shows the number of candidates who were eligible to have their nomination deposits refunded.

	Number of Candidates	Number of Candidates eligible for refund
Australian Labor Party	128	128
Christian Democratic Party	10	0
Country Alliance	37	10
D.L.P. Democratic Labor Party	67	3

Insurance and claims

The Victorian Electoral Commission is insured with the Victorian Managed Insurance Authority and is generally covered under the Department of Justice policy. The VEC has additional coverage for:

- Professional Indemnity — required by many organisations in tenders for election services
- Public and Products Liability — a buy-down of the excess
- Group Personal Accident — insurance coverage for Election Officials
- Travel — insurance for travel by staff

There were 58 incidents involving the public registered compared with 22 in 2006. There were 19 incidents involving election staff reported compared with seven in 2006. Two incidents resulted in claims for WorkCover made by election staff, with the VEC incurring a total cost of $925. There were 11 incidents involving damage to venues. The increase in reported incidents compared with 2006 may be attributable to the wet weather conditions on Election day which caused an increase in slips, trips and falls, and record rainfalls during the election period, which caused some water damage to venues.

Resource management and sustainability

The VEC is committed to managing resources in a way that minimises negative environmental impact across all operations. A number of initiatives introduced at the 2010 State election addressed key strategies from the VEC's Environmental Management Strategy including:

- Alignment of the VEC operations with Government directions in environmental sustainability
- Encouraging staff to become proactively involved in reducing greenhouse emissions
- Engaging internal and external stakeholders in positive action
- Reducing the number of courier journeys by faxing 'not on roll' absent declarations for checking against the enrolment register
- Improving the VEC's environmental performance by reducing environmental impacts and resource consumption that occur as a consequence of VEC operations

The following initiatives reduced the amount of paper used during the State election:

- Online training for election officials reduced the need for the preparation and printing of training materials
- Electronic roll mark-off — the introduction of a direct roll mark off capability for mobile voting and voting at some Election Day voting centres reduced the number of envelopes required for the election
- Production of voting compartments containing pre-printed language translations for electors on how to complete their ballot papers meant the provision of pre-printed multi-language information pamphlets that were previously made available at all voting centres was no longer required. Additionally, this removed the requirement for the provision of labels containing translated voting instructions to be adhered in voting compartments
- Provision of recycling facilities at election offices and voting centres resulted in a reduction of the amount of paper that ended up in land fill
- The introduction of computer applications that increased efficiency and substantially reduced the amount of paper required

The VEC endeavours to comply with Action 16 of the Victorian State Government 2006 Sustainability Action Statement by way of effectively managing resources to minimise environmental impact across all operations. However, there are items outside its control that played a large role in the conduct of a State election. The VEC encourages all stakeholders to embrace sustainable actions.

Electors receive large amounts of election material distributed through State-wide mail-outs or by letter box drops from candidates. The VEC is encouraged to note that a large proportion of election material distributed by parties and candidates is printed in an environmentally sustainable manner.

Section 2
Enrolment

Victorians responded to the VEC's call for enrolments in the lead-up to the 2010 State election. In the seven days between the issue of the writ and the close of rolls, the VEC received 38,152 new enrolments and updates. At the close of rolls at 8.00pm on Tuesday, 9 November, 3,582,232 people were enrolled to vote in the 2010 election, compared with 3,353,845 in 2006, and 3,228,466 at the 2002 State election.

Enrolment services

With the aim of having as accurate an enrolment register as possible at the close of rolls, the VEC took advantage of the fixed election date to conduct an extended enrolment advertising campaign for a month prior to the issue of the writ. The campaign included television, radio, newspaper and outdoor advertising that reminded eligible electors to enrol or update their enrolment details. The VEC processed 10,801 new enrolments and 30,896 enrolment updates in the month prior to the issue of the writ.

To maintain the accuracy of the enrolment register on an ongoing basis, the VEC has a range of strategic programs to help Victorians to enrol or update their enrolment. The VEC sends enrolment brochures to Victorians when they turn 17 years of age and become eligible to provisionally enrol, and to electors who have changed their address and need to update their enrolment details. Electors are targeted through data-matching initiatives with agencies such as with the Rental Tenancies Bond Authority and VicRoads. This ensures the VEC only mails enrolment forms to those people who have changed address recently.

Receiving an enrolment form may prompt an elector to act when they might otherwise delay enrolling or updating their enrolment until an election is called. Non-response to a mail-out results in follow-up action.

The VEC has ongoing enrolment data collection arrangements with a number of organisations. In 2009-10, the VEC collected 136,330 enrolments through its strategic enrolment programs and arrangements. Enrolment forms are also available year round on the VEC website, at local council offices, Centrelink offices and post offices.

Automatic enrolment

The legislation introduced in August 2010 enabled the VEC to automatically enrol people onto the register of electors in situations where, having regard to information obtained through its compulsory acquisition powers under S.26(4) of the Electoral Act 2002, the VEC considered the person to be entitled to be enrolled on the register of electors.

The VEC opted to take a cautious approach in implementing the new legislation and in the lead-up to the 2010 State election, limited this activity to students registered with the Victorian Curriculum and Assessment Authority (VCAA).

In October 2010, the VEC wrote to 1,932 students, aged 18 years or older at 30 September 2010 and not enrolled, advising them that the VEC intended to enrol them on the register of electors. The students had 14 days to advise the VEC if they were not entitled to enrol. Fifteen letters were returned marked undeliverable, or no longer at the address. Advice was received in relation to a further 17 students, who did not understand the significance of enrolment and voting, and 105 students were enrolled as a result of receiving the notice and 1,795 more were enrolled by the Commission. Of those electors who were automatically enrolled, 1,557 subsequently voted at the election (see Figure 2). The VEC conducted non-voter follow-up in relation to automatically enrolled electors who apparently failed to vote.

Of the 238 automatically enrolled electors that did not vote, 68 have subsequently been excused, 19 have paid their penalty and 13 have provided invalid responses at the time of writing this report. A further 13 non-voter notices sent to these electors have been received by the VEC, marked return to sender. None of these 238 electors has claimed that they did not know they were enrolled.

Close of roll

At the issue of the writ, eligible electors have seven days to ensure they are on the electoral roll and that their enrolment details are correct. Electors were able to update their enrolment details or enrol at VEC or Australian Electoral Commission (AEC) election offices throughout the State, collect an enrolment form at any post office, or use the AEC's online enrolment SmartForm via a link on the VEC's website. The SmartForm captures an elector's details online, eliminating the need for data entry. Electors could email, fax, post or hand-deliver enrolment forms to the VEC.

In 2006, the period between the issue of the writ and the close of roll was extended from three days to seven days, with no other changes to the election timeframe. With the federal election held just two months before the close of rolls for the 2010 State election, enrolments were considerably fewer than for the same period in 2006. However, timely production of essential roll products remains an issue, and the VEC was again required to negotiate special arrangements outside the service level agreement to obtain close of roll data from the AEC.

At the close of rolls at 8.00pm on Tuesday, 9 November, 3,582,232 people were enrolled to vote in the 2010 State election, compared with 3,353,845 at the 2006 State election. Appendix 5 and Appendix 6 contain details of region and district enrolments at the close of roll.

The VEC entered into special arrangements with the AEC to facilitate the close of roll for roll production. Electors wanting to enrol via the VEC website were redirected to the AEC SmartForm. The AEC provided two special enrolment transactions and set up a centralised data entry team for processing enrolments in the week leading up to the close of roll. All AEC and VEC offices were open until 8.00pm on close of roll and the AEC provided the close of roll extract within 24 hours of close of roll. The VEC would like to formally record its appreciation for the AEC's responsive turnaround, which was critical to the success of the VEC's roll production, nomination checking and dispatch of postal votes.

Australia Post trial

In September 2010, Australia Post met with the AEC in Canberra to discuss a proposal to promote the federal election close of roll through their Customer Service outlets. Due to the timeframe for the 2010 federal election, the proposal could not be implemented. It was suggested that a similar program could be put in place for the upcoming Victorian State election which was to be held later in the year. The matter was referred to the VEC for further exploration.

The VEC met with Australia Post in October. Australia Post proposed promoting the close of roll through their 196 Victorian corporate outlets. Staff would wear T-shirts, caps or badges promoting the close of roll. Customers would be asked if their enrolment details were up-to-date. Posters would be on display in the Post Office. The cost was $70,000 (which was half the cost of the Victorian element quoted for the federal election). The VEC would be required to provide the tee-shirts, caps or badges and the posters.

The VEC approached the AEC as to whether the program could be funded out of the National CRU budget from savings resulting from the suspension of mail-outs due to the federal and State elections, and the AEC agreed to fund the trial.

The program ran from 25 October 2010 to 9 November 2010, with a total of 1131 enrolment applications or updates received as a direct result of the campaign. The number of applications received as a result of the trial was disappointing. However, enrolment activity on the whole was significantly down when compared with the same period in 2006. This was most likely due to the close proximity of the federal election. The VEC considers it unlikely that it will use the service again at the next State election.

Section 3
Voting

3

Voter turnout and informal voting rates are useful indicators of the health of an electoral system. These indicators may be affected by factors other than the services provided by an electoral authority, including interest in the election, election issues, the geography and demographic composition of the electorate, and even the weather on Election Day.

By providing Victorians with the voting services and information they needed to participate fully and appropriately in the election, the VEC sought to maximise voter participation and reduce informal voting.

Voter turnout

Voter turnout at the 2010 State election for the Lower House was 92.96% of the total electors enrolled, slightly higher than the 92.73% at the 2006 State election, but lower than the 93.15% recorded at the 2002 State election. A table showing voter turnout and informality rates for Australian parliamentary elections is included as Appendix 7.

Informal voting

The proportion of informal votes for the Legislative Assembly (Lower House) at the 2010 election was 4.96%, slightly higher than previous informality rates of 4.56% in 2006 and 3.42% in 2002.

The rate of informal votes for the Legislative Council (Upper House) was 3.38%, which was almost one percentage point lower than for the 2006 State election. The decrease may be due to growing familiarity with the voting system. An analysis of informal ballot papers can be found in the overview of statistics section of this report.

Voting services

Arrangements for voting before Election Day

The VEC made a variety of arrangements for electors who were unable to attend a voting centre on Election Day. A total of 817,263 Victorians voted before Election Day, representing 24.54% of all votes cast (22.82% of electors on the roll). There is a significant and notable increase in the number of votes being cast before Election Day at Victorian State elections. The total number of votes that were cast before Election Day and counted was a 69% increase on the number at 2006 State election (468,567 or 15.07% of all votes) and a 156% increase on that of 2002 (10.29% of all votes).

Office network

For the 2010 State election the VEC's infrastructure was expanded to cater for network links from 64 election offices, 45 early voting centres, the Telephone Enquiry Service, WebCentral (which hosted the VEC's virtual tally room and other critical websites), a microwave radio link to the VEC's tally room at Etihad Stadium as well as 750 NextG connections and two connections from the United Kingdom. In addition, the VEC provided remote access to the roll for interstate and overseas voting centres and acted as the back site for the VEC's electronically assisted voting solution.

Early voting in person

Voting in person was available at 101 early voting centres throughout the State prior to Election Day. Early voting centres were open for two weeks, from Friday, 12 November, to Friday, 26 November. In addition to business hours, these centres were open until 8:00pm on Thursday, 25 November, and from 8.00am to 2.00pm on Saturday, 20 November, to meet the needs of those members of the community who could not vote on Election Day or during business hours.

There were 559,857 votes cast at early voting centres prior to Election Day, more than twice the number of votes cast at early voting centres in 2006. In most cases, the election office was considered to be appropriately located for the purpose of voting prior to Election Day. However, an additional 45 early voting centres were established to supplement election offices, including one each at Melbourne and Avalon airports. The VEC received a small number of complaints relating to the location of, or difficulty finding early voting centres, and will consider all comments for future elections.

Operating hours at early voting centres at both airports were extended to ensure that electors leaving Victoria on all major flights could vote. At Melbourne Airport, operating hours were 5.00am to 10.00pm from Monday 15 to Thursday, 25 November and until 6.00pm on Friday, 26 November. Avalon Airport operating hours were 5.00am to 7.30pm from Monday, 15 November to Thursday, 25 November and until 6.00pm on Friday, 26 November. Operating hours also included the weekend of 20 and 21 November at both airports.

Electors with special circumstances were able to vote from 4.00pm on Friday, 12 November, four hours after the close of nominations. However, they were only able to vote on ballot papers with below-the-line voting options, as group voting tickets were not finalised until the Sunday after the commencement of early voting. The very short period between the close of nominations and commencement of early voting does not allow enough time for the production and distribution of ballot papers, so ballot papers were printed on-site at election offices.

The use of Netbooks at all early voting centres enabled staff to identify an elector's correct enrolled address and district, so that the elector could cast a ballot without having to complete a declaration envelope, making voting much quicker. Electors were marked directly on the VEC's central database as having voted. A list of early voting centres is included as Appendix 11 .

Interstate and overseas locations

Early voting was possible at 11 interstate and 34 overseas locations. A total of 10,758 votes were returned from outside Victoria during the 2010 State election. This is slightly fewer than in 2006 (10,805) but more than 8,205 votes cast outside Victoria at the 2002 State election. Lists of early voting centres are included as Appendices 12 and 13.

Mobile early voting

The Electoral Commissioner has the authority to appoint certain institutions as mobile early voting centres, to enable electors in those institutions to vote on the spot when a mobile voting team visits in the lead-up to a State election. Mobile early voting teams may visit establishments such as nursing homes, hostels and hospitals.

There were 986 mobile early voting centres appointed for the 2010 State election, compared with 892 locations in 2006. Some venues requested postal voting services only and 833 requested a mobile voting team to visit.

For the first time, Netbooks were used at voting centres where a mobile service was provided. The Netbooks provided access to the State election roll to assist election officials to identify each elector's correct enrolment details and to mark them directly on the VEC's central database as having voted. A total of 39,468 votes were issued to electors at mobile early voting centres.

Homelessness agencies

A mobile early voting team visited 11 homelessness agency locations between 16 and 26 November. Spending between two to three hours at each location, staff offered voting services including, and in accordance with new legislation, the opportunity to enrol and vote provisionally on the spot.

Cardboard voting screens were setup, and staff used an electronic roll to mark electors as having voted. In addition to the 355 votes cast in 2010, 44 provisional votes were cast by people experiencing homelessness who, under new legislation, were able to enrol and vote on the spot if certain criteria were satisfied.

Prisons and correctional facilities

Mobile early voting facilities were established six correctional centres for the 2010 State election; the Melbourne Assessment Centre, Melbourne Remand Centre, Barwon Prison, Dame Phyllis Frost Centre, Marngoneet Correctional Centre and Port Phillip Prison.

Blind and low vision service agencies

The VEC provided mobile voting facilities at a number of agencies that provide support services for electors who are blind or have low vision. This included Vision Australia Centres at Geelong, Kensington, Bendigo, Dandenong, Warrnambool and Mildura and at Blind Citizens Australia Melbourne and Guide Dogs Australia in East Melbourne.

Aboriginal communities

For the 2010 State election, the VEC provided a mobile early voting service at Lake Tyers, an Aboriginal community with approximately 150 residents and 30 staff members.

Mobile early voting services at disability service agencies

Mobile early voting was offered as a pilot specialist service to Scope day centres. This offer was declined as Scope advised that, in line with its inclusion-based approach, it prefered to encourage clients to use a voting centre.

Early voting by post

Electors unable to attend a voting centre on Election Day could access a postal vote in the following ways:

- Collecting an application form for a postal vote from any post office in Victoria
- Collecting an application from any election office or interstate or overseas voting location
- Downloading a postal vote application from the VEC's website
- Telephoning the VEC's telephone enquiry service to request an application form be posted to them
- Using an application form provided by a political party

Postal vote applications were scanned and processed electronically, centrally by the VEC, eliminating labour-intensive handling of paper applications and helped to ensure the efficient delivery of ballot packs. The VEC's Election Management System enabled election officials to track all applications and inform electors of the status of their application at any time.

As an initiative, the VEC introduced emailed ballot material for the 2010 State election. This facility was only available to electors in remote areas or overseas who would experience difficulty in accessing postal facilities. Electors could submit a postal vote application by email, providing an email address for receipt of ballot material. The VEC processed each application and then sent two emails to each elector who requested the email ballot material service; the first containing a secure file with all ballot material required to vote, and the second containing a password for the elector to access the ballot material file. A total of 1,212 emailed ballot packs were despatched during the election.

Once the initial backlog of postal vote applications was cleared (two working days after the close of nominations), all further postal vote applications were processed on the day they were received by the VEC.

As occurred at the 2006 State election, a number of electors had difficulty with the witness provisions on the application form. The application form requires a 'Title or capacity as witness' to be completed by the witness, with an accompanying list of categories of capacity. The VEC modified the application to clarify these requirements. However, many electors presumed this section required either 'Mr', 'Mrs' etc, or a description of the relationship i.e. hairdresser, neighbour. Political parties and candidates were advised of the Electoral Commissioner's intention to authorise the issue of ballot materials where the elector had signed the application in the presence of a witness, and the witness' address and signature were present on the application. While the VEC took action to provide additional information alerting witnesses of the need to write 'elector', it remained an issue when processing applications.

As occurred at the 2006 State election, some electors who applied for a postal vote also voted at an early voting centre prior to receiving their ballot packs. The introduction of Netbooks at all early voting centres allowed the VEC to identify any elector who had been issued with, but had not returned a postal vote. The computerised system used to mark electors off the roll prior to issuing a vote cancelled the postal vote issued to any elector who wished to cast an early vote instead. If the postal vote was inadvertently returned, it was rejected by the system and not counted.

Australia Post is an important partner in the postal voting system, and the VEC used 'Express Post' for delivery of election material in the week prior to Election Day. This was to ensure that ballot material was delivered by the fastest mail option possible. On Election Day, returned declarations could be quickly checked against the elector's signature on the scanned image of the postal vote application. As a result, most postal votes were included in the count on election night.

Provisional voting

Under new legislation introduced in 2010, section 108 of the Electoral Act 2002 was updated to replace unenrolled voting with provisional voting. People who were found not to be enrolled when they attended to vote at this election were able to enrol and cast a provisional vote at a voting centre. They were required to show a proof of identification such as a driver licence or learner permit, or to nominate a service provider to be contacted to verify identity. After Election Day, the VEC checked the enrolment applications and verified identities and addresses with service providers, and, if everything was satisfactory, enrolled the applicants and admitted their votes to scrutiny at the election. An analysis of the enrolment history for electors who enrolled on the day is shown in Figure 8.

Registered General Postal Voters

Electors who satisfy certain statutory requirements regarding their inability to vote at a voting centre at election time are eligible for registration as General Postal Voters. By registering as a General Postal Voter, electors automatically receive ballot papers in the mail for all State elections and local government attendance elections.

There were 51,713 registered General Postal Voters at the 2010 State election. This figure demonstrates an increasing trend of voters in this category (31,243 in 2002 and 41,722 in 2006).

Antarctic electors

An 'Antarctic elector' is an elector who has made a request under the Electoral Act 2002 to be treated as such while employed in Antarctica. Antarctic electors were provided with specially designed, secure electronic ballot papers. On completion, the ballot papers were automatically sent to a secure mailbox at the VEC. Twenty-one votes were returned by Antarctic electors of which fifteen were able to be included in the count.

Arrangements for voting on Election Day

Voting took place between 8.00am and 6.00pm at 1,839 voting centres throughout Victoria on Election Day, Saturday, 27 November 2010.

Voters were able to cast an ordinary vote at a voting centre within their electorate, or vote at any other voting centre in the State outside their electorate by casting an 'absent vote'.

Of the total votes counted for the election, 2,538,460 were issued on Election Day. This compares with 2,641,340 in 2006 and 2,698,026 in 2002.

A total of 158 joint voting centres were established for this election, compared with 147 in 2006 and 23 in 2002. The aim of establishing a joint voting centre is to reduce the number of absent votes issued at voting centres located close to electorate boundaries, thereby speeding up the voting process for affected electors.

Voting centres were established primarily in schools and community halls selected by Election Managers during preparation for the election, with a preference for those that were wheelchair accessible. Disability and community groups were invited to suggest suitable voting centres that the VEC had not already identified.

An accessibility audit of all selected venues was conducted and they were subsequently classified according to recognised national accessibility standards. Despite its best efforts, the VEC continues to be disappointed with the lack of wheelchair accessible venues available for use as voting centres – particularly given that most of the venues are State Government-owned.

Voting centre locations were promoted through the VEC's telephone enquiry service, online through the voting centre look up and via an iPhone app. In addition, all voting centres were listed in major daily and Regional newspapers. The accessibility rating of all centres was included and those venues rated as 'assisted access' included a brief description of their accessibility limitations.

The Victorian Electoral Commission reviewed its election workforce planning, and incorporated feedback and observations from the 2006 State election, along with consideration of the EMC recommendations, when developing the plan for the 2010 State election. Targets were set for completion of tasks in each voting centre no later than 10.00pm. To reduce queue length and voter waiting time, ordinary issuing point loadings were decreased from 600 to 550 votes issued on Election Day per ordinary issuing point. Total voting centre staffing increased from 14,811 to 16,993.

The VEC introduced two new part-day employment positions designed to supplement voting centre staffing during the morning when voter numbers are generally higher, and to assist with counting after 6pm, reducing expected count completion times. A total of 563 part-day voting centre support officers, and 1,187 part-day count support officers were appointed.

The VEC exceeded its 2010 target that voter estimates would be within 550 ordinary votes (i.e. one issuing table) for 99% of appointed voting centres, achieving 99.02%, compared with 97.68% in 2006. Despite a high correlation between expected and actual voter numbers at each voting centre, it was observed that higher than usual numbers of electors attended to vote early in the day. This may have been due to the forecast of extreme weather conditions later in the day.

By 10.00pm on election night, 98.9% of primary district results were entered, compared with 96.4% at the same time in 2006.

Assistance for electors from non-English speaking backgrounds

At the 2010 State election, voting instructions in a range of languages were printed on the voter-facing side of every voting screen. The VEC developed an online registration facility that included questions about foreign language fluency, for people seeking election work. This resulted in the number of staff identifying as having skills in other languages as well as English, increasing from 1,669 in 2006 to 2,931 in 2010. Data from the 2006 census and Department of Immigration settlement statistics were analysed to assess the main languages spoken in each district. This analysis was provided to Election Managers and Voting Centre Managers to assist with strategic recruitment and placement of election staff in relation to the languages spoken in each area.

The Electoral Amendment (Electoral Participation) Act 2010, passed in August 2010, amended the Electoral Act 2002 to enable electronically assisted voting (EAV) to be offered at the 2010 State election to electors whose first language is not English, electors with low literacy and electors with a motor skill impairment as well as electors who are blind or have low vision. The EAV piloted at the 2006 election was further developed, and made available at all early voting venues at the 2010 State election. Almost 1000 votes were received electronically.

Publishing key election information in accessible formats including Easy English is a major commitment outlined in the VEC's Disability Action Plan. The VEC developed an Easy English Guide to the 2010 State election, which was extremely popular.

Electoral information in 22 languages and English was available on the VEC's website, and a telephone interpreter service was advertised. The telephone service provided pre-recorded information specific to each phase of the election and an option for the caller to request the services of an interpreter.

Translated audio files were also available via the VEC's website for those non-English speaking electors who were not literate in their own language.

Translated instructions for the use of touchscreens and telephones for electronically assisted voting (EAV) were also available in the 12 languages offered on the EAV system.

The VEC website conforms to the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines 2.0 conventions for accessibility. A link to BrowseAloud, a downloadable application that reads the text on a website, is provided on the VEC website.

Additional voting services

The VEC is committed to ensuring maximum accessibility to voting. As such, an analysis was conducted to identify any key events that were occurring on Saturday, 27 November, so that suitable services could be provided for electors attending these events. The VEC contacted organisers of these events to coordinate information for participants, examine opportunities to advertise in relevant publications, or in some instances to provide advice on voting centres close to the events. Major events catered for included the Corporate Games, Great Victorian Bike Ride, Queenscliff Music Festival, La Dolce Vita Wangaratta, Eltham Amateur Wine Show and Mt Eliza Yoga Retreat.

The VEC also provided a specialised postal voting service for passengers travelling on the Dawn Princess cruise ship, which departed from Melbourne on 10 November, stopping at various ports around Australia and returning to Melbourne on 8 December.

Electronically Assisted Voting

In July 2006, the Electoral and Parliamentary Committees Legislation (Amendment) Act 2006 was passed by the Parliament. This allowed for the introduction of Electronically Assisted Voting (EAV) at the 2006 State election, and the VEC conducted a limited pilot of Electronically Assisted Voting (EAV) for electors who are blind or who have low vision. The VEC established six 'E-Centres' (five in metropolitan areas and one in Geelong) enabling electors to vote using whichever combination of touchscreen kiosk, headphones and keypad that best suited their needs.

The technology proved successful with no security issues and very encouraging user feedback. In its report on the 2006 State election, the VEC recommended that the group of electors eligible to use the service be expanded to include electors with a motor skill impairment, electors whose first language is not English, and those with low or no English literacy . The Electoral Amendment (Electoral Participation) Act 2010 (EA Act) amended the Electoral Act 2002 (the Act) to include these groups within the EAV franchise.

Electors located outside Victoria had been included in the EAV franchise in the legislation passed prior to the 2006 State election, but regulatory amendments (ultimately made in 2010) were required to enable the provision of EAV to this group.

Enhancements to the EAV system were developed in response to findings from both the 2006 Victorian State election, and the 2007 Australian Federal election, where a kiosk-type electronic solution was also used. The enhancements also took into account the recommendations and suggestions in the Electoral Matters Committee's 2008 report.

EAV was successfully rolled out to each of the 101 early voting centres located across Victoria for the 2010 State election. In addition, the VEC provided EAV facilities for electors at eight interstate voting centres and at two centres in the United Kingdom. This increased the number of votes fivefold, empowering many voters to cast their vote in secret at a State election for the first time. A major change at this election was the introduction of a telephone for electors who are blind or who have low vision. The touchscreen with headphones was used only by electors with some vision.

A total of 160 election officials were trained to set up, test and support the deployment of the touchscreens and phones around Victoria, interstate and in the United Kingdom. This training was reinforced in the weeks before the election in a simulation exercise that included high volumes of electors. This was invaluable for the VEC to identify and address potential problems prior to the start of the early voting period.

The VEC provided 208 telephones with recorded instructions to guide the elector through the voting process. Audio prompts were supplied in 12 languages selected after demographic research, ballot paper analysis and consultation. The available languages were Arabic, Cantonese, Croatian, English, Greek, Italian, Khmer, Macedonian, Mandarin, Serbian, Turkish and Vietnamese.

Every early voting centre had at least two telephones and nearly half the centres also had the option of an EAV touchscreen system. Electors could listen to audio cues via a headset and follow the instructions on the touchscreen provided to cast their vote. These instructions were provided in the selected 12 languages.

All votes were cast in secret and moved through three phases – vote, verify and submit. Upon completion of each virtual ballot paper, the elector was able to review and verify their vote and revise them if they wished. The system advised them if they were about to make an informal vote and would accept the vote as informal if that was the intention. Once the vote was cast it was encrypted and sent to the VEC to be printed out on election night.

The elector was also offered the option of a printed receipt with a transaction number that could be entered on the VEC's website after the election and verified that the electronic vote had been received. Neither the receipt nor the website disclosed the vote itself, rather just the fact that the vote had been received and counted.

The voting totals from all locations including practice votes, and the final numbers for binding votes are detailed in Figure 13. See Appendix 8 for maps showing the distribution of electronically assisted voting.

Channel	Votes
Practice kiosk votes	96
Practice telephone votes	59
Binding kiosk votes	841
Binding telephone votes	120
Total number of votes including practice votes	1116
Total number of binding votes	961

An informality rate of 1% was recorded in relation to votes taken via EAV compared with an average informality rate of 4.96% for non-EAV users. Nearly 10% of EAV users voted below-the-line for the Upper House in comparison to an average of 4% of non-EAV users voting below-the-line.

Overarching considerations of the EAV project were protecting the integrity of the secret ballot and ensuring the security of the system. The VEC appointed a Technical Officer to audit the integrity of the system. The Technical Officer was satisfied by the VEC's implementation of EAV, making recommendations for the VEC to consider. These will be discussed in the VEC's formal report on the EAV project.

EAV was considered by the users to be an overwhelming success. In an independent survey conducted by Colmar-Brunton Social Research, 100% of blind and low vision voters sampled stated they were 'highly satisfied' with the service and would use it again. There was also a high level of confidence in the system with 100% of these users believing their votes were recorded accurately. Voters also commended the system as easy to use, private and convenient.

A full report of the electronically assisted voting project will be published during 2011.

With the introduction of electronically assisted voting in the United Kingdom, the VEC appointed a staff member (or VEC representative) specifically to oversee this project, who was based in London during the voting period. The VEC representative was responsible for all aspects of electronically assisted voting in Manchester and London, including the set-up and removal of equipment at each venue, and the training and support of staff appointed as early voting officials.

In order to establish an early voting centre at Victoria House, London, the VEC commenced negotiation with the Agent General, Sally Capp in May 2010. It was important that the relationship between the VEC representative in London and the staff provided by the Agent General's office be cohesive. Effective planning and early consultation resulted in a very successful project, with over 700 electronically assisted votes taken in London. The VEC appreciates the assistance provided by the Agent General.

Section 5
Communication services

The VEC commenced its communication campaign one month prior to the issue of the writ, with an extensive public awareness campaign.

The objectives of the 2010 communication campaign were to:

- Maximise new enrolments and enrolment updates prior to the close of the roll
- Maximise the level of voter participation for the election
- Minimise the level of informal voting
- Encourage early voting among key target audiences
- Provide timely, clear and accurate information services to candidates
- Provide accurate, clear and accessible information to the public and media
- Communicate accurate, accessible and timely election results
- Maximise public awareness of voting innovations
- Maintain/increase public confidence in the VEC's ability to conduct elections
- Increase level of electronically assisted voting participation

The campaign involved a State-wide mail-out, press, radio, television, outdoor advertising, a telephone enquiry service, media relations, community presentations and outreach services, publications, social media and the VEC's website. Audience-specific strategies targeted the following groups:

- Young electors 17–34 years of age
- Electors with a disability
- Users of electronically assisted voting systems
- CALD electors
- Frail/elderly electors
- Indigenous electors
- People experiencing homelessness
- Interstate or overseas electors
- Media and journalists

Media representatives were invited to a number of briefings, and arrangements to provide information in short time-frames were established.

EasyVote Guide

The most significant form of election communication for the 2010 State election was the direct mail of an EasyVote Guide to every elector on the roll at the close of roll. The EasyVote Guide was a four page, A4 document detailing:

- The election date
- Early, postal and electronically assisted voting options
- Information on how to vote correctly for both houses of Parliament
- Language lines and the election hotline number
- An offer for SMS text voting reminders
- The location of every early voting centre and Election Day voting centre within the elector's district, along with the applicable accessibility rating of those voting centres

The EasyVote Guide included a detachable EasyVote Card containing an elector ID for voting centres using Netbooks, and for voting centres where manual marking of the roll was required, the scannable roll page number and the position on the page, where the elector's details could be found. This assisted with faster elector roll mark off. The redevelopment of the EasyVote Guide, particularly the inclusion of voting locations was in direct response to market research feedback from the 2006 State election.

Focus group testing on the EasyVote Guide proved extremely positive and the market research indicates that almost 70% of ordinary, absent and CALD voters recalled content from the EasyVote Guide. The EasyVote Guide was less effective for early voters and postal voters who needed to vote prior to receiving the publication in most instances.

In an effort to engage Victorian electors in the United Kingdom, the 2010 State election advertising campaign used targeted advertising across both print and online media.

In early October, large print ads were placed in two issues of TNT magazine, a free publication for travellers in the UK. These ads were supported by online banner advertisements throughout November on the TNT website. The VEC used IP address matching to target Victorians in the UK who accessed popular Victorian news sites such as heraldsun.com.au and theage.com.au. Banner ads were placed on facebook and only shown to people who were registered as over 18, born in Australia and who were accessing facebook from the United Kingdom.

Advertising campaign

Following a competitive tendering process, the VEC appointed Grey Global to adapt the 2002 and 2006 State election advertising campaign, Every vote will shape Victoria, for the 2010 State election. Advertising was designed to address key topics such as enrolment, voting locations and how to vote, and was delivered in phases related to the election timeline, key dates and events (see Figure 17). Sample advertisements can be found in Appendix 9. Figure 18 compares the costs of the election advertising campaigns for the last three elections.

Communication services for Regional and remote Victorians

Placement of advertising targeted to Regional and remote Victorians was dictated by the need to balance effective targeting of key information with best 'value for money'. The VEC advertised in an extended range of Regional newspapers, including the Mighty V newspapers, The Weekly Times and 67 Victorian Country Press Association newspapers.

General Postal Voter registration was promoted to electors residing more than 20 km from a voting centre, as was postal voting. Targeted areas included the remote Western, North Western and Alpine Regions of Victoria.

Placements on the WIN TV, Southern Cross and Prime television networks and eight Regional radio stations formed part of the Regional communication strategy. Details of Regional advertising are included in Figure 19.

Communication services for voters from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds

Early in 2010, the VEC established an Advisory Group consisting of representatives from organisations working with culturally and linguistically diverse (CALD) communities. Various election communication and education initiatives were suggested by and canvassed with the Advisory Group.

Four media releases in 28 languages were distributed to 93 different ethnic publications throughout October and November, while paid advertising in 22 languages ran in 45 ethnic publications and on seven radio stations. Details of spending for advertising directed at CALD electors is presented in Figure 20.

Key information in 22 languages plus English was provided on the VEC website. A translated enrolment form for was available in 20 languages. Audio files in two further languages were available to assist those people experiencing difficulty with literacy in those languages. CALD electors also had access via the website to the VEC's interactive virtual voting experience (18 languages plus English), originally produced for the 2006 State election. This provided a voting simulation and a demonstration of how to complete Upper and Lower House ballot papers. Information kits were mailed to 984 CALD community groups (see Community Education and Engagement section of this report).

Multi-language voting instructions were printed on the elector-facing panel of all standard and wheelchair height voting screens at voting centres, and multi-lingual election officials were clearly identified, wearing a sticker indicating the language spoken.

Advertising in ethnic and English print media included the VEC's 20 multi-lingual telephone enquiry service numbers that operate all year round. Callers who dialled a language-specific number heard a message on a selection of election-related topics and could then opt to speak through an interpreter with a telephone enquiry service operator. Details of calls received via language specific numbers and requests for interpreter services are included in Appendix 10.

Website

The VEC developed an election-specific landing page (131vec.com.au) designed to complement the 131 VEC (131 832) telephone enquiry service number, to enable better recall through advertising and to increase access and visits to the site. Linked icons on this landing page took site visitors directly to information for each stage of the election. Just over 190,000 page visits were registered during October and November 2010.

A link from the landing page to a page for overseas electors was included in response to feedback from that elector group. Information about where to vote and the availability of online checking of enrolment details were the most popular pages, followed by how to vote outside your electorate, general State election information and downloadable enrolment forms.

The VEC also provided a free software application, BrowseAloud, on its website for download. The application reads website text and PDFs to website users.

Links to the State election web pages were included on the VEC homepage. During the month of November, the VEC had just over 600,000 page visits to its homepage. The site averaged just over 11,000 unique visits each day from the Monday to Friday prior to Election Day and 21,163 unique visits on Election Day.

Voting centre search facility

The website also included a voting centre search facility, to identify and locate early voting centres and Election Day voting centres. After an address was entered, a search returned the details of the five voting centres nearest that address or (prior to Election Day) two early voting centres. Details included the voting centre address, Melways map and reference, accessibility rating, details of any access limitations, and noted whether the voting centre was within the electoral district related to that address. Electors could also search by locality or postcode, which proved helpful for those away from their enrolled address on Election Day.

Over the campaign period 211,353 search requests were recorded. This is a slight decrease on the 206,000 odd hits for the service in 2006. On Election day 30,840 hits were recorded, similar to the 2006 total of 33,195. It is possible this decrease is attributable to the introduction of the Vote Victoria app which recorded 2,727 downloads on Election Day, and the inclusion of voting centres on the EasyVote Guide.

Telephone enquiry service

The VEC outsourced (by tender) its Telephone Enquiry Service (TES) project. The TES dealt effectively and efficiently with the large number of calls received during the election, operating for nine weeks, from Monday, 27 September, to Wednesday, 1 December. Operating hours were 9.00am–5.30pm weekdays (8.00pm on close of roll), 9.00am–2.00pm on Saturday, 13 and 20 November, and 8.00am–6.00pm on Saturday, 27 November.

To address concerns that call numbers could approach 250,000-300,000, an initial message directed callers to the VEC website. The TES received 106,784 calls during the election period (compared with 227,246 in 2006 and 129,774 in 2002). Up to 90 trained operators were available to answer calls at peak times. The VEC provided training and online information to operators to enable them to answer questions quickly and accurately regarding:

- how and where to enrol
- Election Manager contact details and how to nominate as a candidate
- the location of interstate and overseas voting centres
- how to vote by post or in person before Election Day
- the location of mobile early voting centres
- voting on Election Day

The more complex calls were handled by team leaders. Any enquiry requiring more detail was referred to a VEC representative and, if required, could be transferred to the VEC's head office for final resolution of the matter.

All State election advertising publicised the 131VEC (131 832) hotline number. Interpreter lines for 20 languages other than English were also advertised on the bottom of print advertisements and on the EasyVote Guide. Notably, all advertising generated large increases in the volume of calls received in the period immediately following publication or broadcast.

SMS enrolment and reminder service

In response to Recommendation 3.3 of the Electoral Matters Committee report on the conduct of the 2006 State election, the VEC investigated the feasibility of short messaging service (SMS) text enrolment, an SMS enrolment and reminder services. The VEC considered that trialling of the services at this election was practicable to determine their feasibility at future elections.

As this was a new communication field for the VEC, the organisation opted to partner with an experienced company that had been recommended by Telstra — Ad I.Q. The SMS strategy had two phases. Voters could request an enrolment form by SMS during the enrolment period. Later in the campaign, voters could register for a series of voting reminders — for the early voting period and two on Election Day itself. Registration for the SMS reminder service could be achieved by SMS text or online.

In direct response to SMS requests, 762 enrolment forms were distributed, and a post-election analysis revealed that 57% of these resulted in new or updated enrolments. A total of 5,466 requests for an SMS reminder were received, peaking on election eve with 893 requests in a single 24 hour period. A portion of the reminder service users could be characterised as 'active' SMS users, as several hundred had manually opted out between the morning and afternoon reminders.

Key to the success of the SMS project was the fact that both phases (enrolment and reminder) were highlighted in the mainstream communications campaign. An analysis of advertising schedules against incoming SMS requests showed that use rates peaked for all media within moments of ads being seen. Television was the most successful medium, outdoor advertising was the weakest.

Encouraging enrolment via SMS was somewhat successful. However, legislative amendments enabling automatic enrolment, plus the fact that the manual distribution of paper forms was required when there is a range of quicker and more sustainable options available, mean that the VEC is unlikely to pursue this again.

The reminder service was significantly more popular, required very little in the way of resources and is likely to be continued. The service can be offered free if people register for it online, (SMS registration has a fee attached) and could be integrated with other VEC communication tools, such as the VEC facebook page or iPhone application.

Vote Victoria (iPhone application)

The VEC helped to define an iPhone application (app) concept, which was developed by Information Victoria as a test case for government/private partnerships with consulting firm Deloitte.

Focusing on iPhone, the most widely used platform, and limiting the functionality to three key features: a GPS assisted voting centre locator, a page for general electoral information and a method to access live results, Vote Victoria was listed in the iTunes App Store on 18 November. Vote Victoria was downloaded 5,165 times during the ten days it was live, and its average review score on iTunes was 4.5 of a possible 5 stars.

Feedback focused almost entirely on the nature of the election results. The iPhone app was consistent with the VEC's physical and online tallyrooms. However, differences between the official results from the VEC and results as interpreted by media commentators caused some confusion. Vote Victoria capitalised on current technology trends to provide a simple, yet effective service to a wide audience.

Social media – facebook and YouTube

Recognising that social media has an increasing place in communication, particularly with young people (one of the VEC's target groups), the VEC decided to launch an official presence on the social media platforms facebook and YouTube. This was seen as a cost effective way of delivering campaign messages to an increasingly transient audience that may not be reached by the mainstream campaign.

The sites were constantly monitored to ensure all content supported the VEC's objective — to create greater awareness of the election and provide key election information.

The official VEC facebook page and YouTube channel were launched on 23 September 2010. By Election Day, the facebook page had 117 followers with 75 checking the VEC's posts daily. The VEC's facebook page and YouTube channel were not included in the mainstream campaign, but promoted by VEC staff to contacts and friends. On 15 October, linked icons were included in the footer of the VEC's website.

There were 6,007 views of VEC posts to the facebook page during the campaign, and the underlying strategy of 'informing without challenging' was a success. Feedback from users was posted 22 times during the campaign, none of which was negative, partial or inappropriate. No user posts had to be removed.

Use of the VEC's social media pages was very small compared with the mainstream communications campaign. However, the low cost of administering social media sites and the nature of user base growth suggests that it is a field that should not be overlooked in future communication plans. The VEC's facebook page and YouTube channel are still being maintained. Use has slowed since the election, however, user numbers continue to increase.

Community Education and Engagement

Community Education and Engagement

The VEC's Community Education Team undertook an ambitious program of work spanning in-depth voter information workshops, broader public awareness activity via an election Road show, and the provision of special mobile early voting services for groups including the homeless and prisoners. Figure 26 provides details of the outreach, enrolment and mobile early voting sessions conducted from July to November 2010.

Roadshow

Although the VEC's 2010 election campaign 'Every vote will shape Victoria' consisted primarily of mass media advertising, the VEC decided to run a Roadshow; a community-based public awareness initiative to deliver face-to-face information about the 2010 election. Research undertaken by the VEC indicates many community groups prefer information about elections to be provided in a face-to-face format. The Roadshow was also intended to provide the public with an opportunity to enrol or update their enrolment details before the close of rolls.

The Roadshow was an eye catching inflatable purple arch with a series of interactive activities inside the zone and targeted three key audiences:

- The general voting public in Regional centres and metropolitan areas of low voter participation and high informality
- Culturally and Linguistically Diverse (CALD) communities
- People aged 17–29 years

With the aim of reaching a wide audience, the VEC launched the Roadshow on the 18 September 2010 at the Royal Melbourne Show, a high profile event, where it was awarded third prize in the 'Best Stand' category. This was the first of nine locations — six in metropolitan areas and three in Regional Victoria — over an eight week period. The Roadshow was also awarded a first prize in the Best Community Service category at the Bendigo Agricultural Show.

The Roadshow concluded on 9 November 2010 at Federation Square, coinciding with the close of rolls. While not directly targeting youth festivals and music events, the Roadshow was designed to appeal to the youth audience.

The set was the most commented on aspect of the Roadshow by members of the public and certainly caught people's attention Key Roadshow statistics are provided in Figure 28.

Aboriginal Communities

In early 2010 the VEC appointed an Aboriginal Engagement Officer, with the aim of increasing community understanding of the electoral process through the conduct of Aboriginal outreach sessions, and encouraging a greater number of Aboriginal people to work as election officials during the election. To complement the newly developed Aboriginal Engagement Program and help ensure its success, VEC head office staff and election managers attended cultural awareness training sessions.

The VEC also established an Aboriginal Advisory Group to provide guidance to the VEC on how it might best respond to the electoral information, education and service needs of Aboriginal and Torres Strait islanders in Victoria.

An election specific logo, Yarn up – be solid – vote! Your future in your hands, was developed focusing on providing information and resources, and emails to a distribution list of over 1,000 Aboriginal community contacts. The VEC presented information to 1,272 people over 21 sessions.

Capitalising on the significant affiliation many Aboriginal Victorians have with the Australian Football League, one initiative to increase awareness of the State election, enrolment and voting, was VEC sponsorship of the Marngrook Footy Show's, 'Most Valuable Player of the Finals' series, which culminated in an on-air presentation during Grand Final Week.

Marngrook Football Show presenter, Grant Hansen, a highly recognisable, well respected and influential Victorian Aboriginal personality, was featured in a campaign directed towards Aboriginal communities that included poster, print and radio mediums.

Under the guidance of the Aboriginal Advisory Group, a letter was sent to Aboriginal organisations across Victoria introducing the VEC's new Aboriginal Engagement Officer, and offering a visit and an electoral education session to the organisation. This was supported with in-person networking and electronic mail outs promoting the free service. The VEC provided information sessions, or established information stands at community events.

The Aboriginal Engagement Officer developed a motivational presentation about Koorie history, the Koorie relationship to democracy, motivational and inspirational messages and basic information about enrolling and voting. Figure 29 provides details of activities and outreach sessions that targeted Indigenous Victorians.

Culturally and Linguistically Diverse Communities

The VEC recognises that Culturally and Linguistically Diverse (CALD) communities are not homogeneous or exclusive. Culture and customs can affect people's voting behaviour in Australia, and many people come from countries where the voting systems are different to that in Victoria, where the freedom to vote as one chooses is not always available.

To deliver a responsive and relevant education program, the VEC's community education work employed a range of participatory methodologies to ensure citizens from CALD communities understood how to exercise their democratic right to vote.

The VEC's 2008 resource All About Voting (produced in partnership with AMES) provided a solid grounding for electoral education to this audience.

In the lead up to the 2010 State election, the CALD program aimed to:

- Increase the participation of multicultural communities in the democratic process
- Educate the community about how to complete a ballot paper correctly
- Foster relationships with multicultural community organisations to increase the impact of the VEC's work

To achieve these aims, the 2010 program included:

- Establishing a CALD Advisory Group
- Face-to-face community education sessions
- Distributing community sector information kits

CALD Advisory Group

Established in early 2010, the CALD Advisory Group enables multicultural agencies to advise the VEC on the needs of the CALD communities in relation to the development of electoral engagement initiatives and provision of election services. It also provides an opportunity for the VEC to inform key agencies about State election activity. The members of the Advisory Group represented the following agencies:

- Victorian Multicultural Commission
- Ethnic Community Council of Victoria
- Centre for Multicultural Youth
- AMES — Adult Multicultural Education Services
- Migrant Information Centre East
- Australian Bureau of Statistics

The Advisory Group met twice in the six months prior to the Victorian State election. The Group also received email updates about the progress of outreach and resource development. Members also assisted in the distribution of key information and resources through their networks in the lead up to the election.

Community education sessions

In the six months prior to the State election, community education sessions were delivered to four audiences:

- interpreter assisted workshops to Chinese and Vietnamese community groups
- Easy English sessions with ethno-specific community groups, sometimes delivered with interpreter assistance
- Easy English sessions for ESL classes
- 'train the trainer' sessions to build capacity of community workers around their electoral knowledge

The VEC used its expanding multicultural networks to promote the community education sessions via electronic and hard copy mail outs to multicultural community networks. Chinese and Vietnamese community groups were a focus, as research conducted by the VEC after the 2006 election had revealed that a significant proportion of respondents in these groups were unclear about how to vote correctly. The VEC matched the postcodes of relevant organisations listed in the Victorian Multicultural Commission Resource Directory with postcodes of Districts with an informality rate above 5% at the 2006 State Election. Regional ethnic organisations in Geelong, Bendigo and Shepparton were also approached.

Education sessions with a participatory, plain language approach delivered information about:

- the identification of democratically elected representatives at each level of government
- service provision at each level of government
- the importance of enrolling to vote
- how to correctly complete ballot papers (usually in the form of a mock election).

The community education sessions provided an opportunity to assist people to enrol, check enrolment details and complete other election-related forms. The majority of sessions were conducted in the Western and Northern Metropolitan Regions (both areas with large CALD populations), with 25 Districts across seven Regions covered. Over 10% of sessions were conducted in the Eastern Metropolitan Region, where there are high numbers of Chinese speakers. A total of 64 community education sessions were conducted, with over 1,500 participants in all (see table below).

Survey respondents reported an overwhelming increase in electoral knowledge; with 61% of surveyed participants reporting a good knowledge of democracy after the session, compared to 4% before the session.

Vietnamese groups	6	121

People experiencing homelessness

The VEC has further developed its 'Homeless not Voteless' program, and increased its network of participating homelessness agencies. A key objective of the program is to increase ease of access to, and participation in, the electoral system. This was assisted by a change in Commonwealth legislation during the year with regard to 'No Fixed Address' enrolments. The number of people accessing the program has substantially increased since the 2006 State election. A number of activities for homelessness communities were conducted prior to the 2010 election.

The Living Voice — Graffiti Art Project

This exciting project was developed when Living Room Youth Projects expressed interest in running an electoral education initiative for its clients. Consultation indicated that a standard information session would not suit this client group and a graffiti art project 'living voice' was developed. An artist was employed to create the work with the participation of clients, during which time VEC and Living Room staff were able to engage clients in discussion around having a say, and the importance of enrolling and voting for people experiencing homelessness. The project resulted in a large piece of art spanning the exterior of the Living Room's building and provided a common link for the VEC to build on at the subsequent mobile early voting session.

Worker information sessions

VEC Community Education Team members visited homelessness support agencies to outline program initiatives, organise enrolment opportunities for clients and provide information about issues such as clients' apprehension relating to failure to vote. Around 100 agency workers attended these sessions, assisting the VEC to gauge agency service type, interest and need, and to tailor its various enrolment and election services accordingly.

Enrolment outreach

Based at support agencies, the outreach sessions provided an opportunity for people to enrol or enquire about enrolment, in a familiar and safe location, with the support of agency staff. The sessions frequently coincided with a lunchtime activity.

Community Sector Information Kits

Community Sector Information Kits – a package of resources with information about enrolling and voting in the State election – were sent to key youth, multicultural and Indigenous community agencies and to ethno-specific community groups listed in the Victorian Multicultural Commission's (VMC) State-wide directory.

The aim of the kit was to provide the community sector with an inclusive, engaging and responsive package of information presented in diverse formats for diverse audiences.

The community sector information kits consisted of the following:

- a cover letter detailing equal access, key dates, available resources
- a resource order form
- an Easy English Guide to the State election
- various posters were available targeting key groups
- Every Vote Will Shape Victoria — a booklet about enrolling and voting in State elections
- an enrolment form holder and enrolment forms with the campaign theme
- Your Voice, Your Future — a youth focused resource with key information about enrolling and voting

People with a disability

A key objective of the VEC's Disability Action Plan is the development and implementation of an education program for people with an intellectual impairment or multiple disabilities within daycare environments. The DVD resource Voting is for Everyone forms part of this program.

Developed in partnership with Scope workers and clients, Voting is for Everyone aims to encourage a community-wide conversation about democracy and to dispel some of the misconceptions around voting by people with an intellectual disability, and their capacity and willingness to vote. The kit is a community education resource for people living with a disability, their families and paid care staff, and an Australian industry first.

A strong and productive relationship between the VEC and its Electoral Access Advisory Group has resulted in a number of significant initiatives delivered through the VEC's Disability Action Plan, most notably, the VEC's Voting is for Everyone DVD kit (see Community Education and Engagement). The kit is a community education resource for people living with a disability, their families and paid care staff. The resource was developed in partnership with Scope workers and clients, and features a group facilitation guide focusing on why it's important for people living with a disability to vote and explains the process of voting. The resource was distributed to over 1,000 disability residential and day services across Yooralla, Scope and DHS service providers.

For electors with a mild intellectual disability or low literacy skills, the VEC again produced an updated version of the Easy English Guide to Victorian State elections. This resource continues to be one of the most popular of all of the VEC's publications, particularly as it's also of great use to voters whose first language is not English.

In October 2010, permission was sought from Department of Premier and Cabinet to secure free advertising spots via the Master Advertising Media Service for a 30 second Community Service Announcement (CSA). Using footage from Voting is for Everyone and tagged with VEC State election campaign branding, the aim was to promote the Voting is for Everyone resource and raise awareness of voting and disability amongst the wider community. The CSA resulted in an equivalent media buy of $28,651 at no cost to the VEC.

The VEC also promoted education sessions for disability service clients through metro and rural access workers. Fifteen outreach and education sessions were conducted with 328 participants. The focus of these sessions was to provide education about levels of government, how to contact the person's electorate representatives, how to vote correctly and about seeking assistance from either an election official or a paid care giver to complete ballot papers if they were unable to physically do so themselves. Enrolments were often taken during these sessions.

Students and first-time voters

The VEC repeated a successful initiative from 2006 and ran a special voting supplement in The Age newspaper for the State election. However in 2010, the supplement was published earlier (July) to enable teachers to better incorporate election activities into the classroom. The issue was very popular, with many teachers ordering class sets.

Passport to Democracy (PTD) is the VEC's dynamic, interactive and fully resourced program for secondary students. The program takes students on a journey of their own creation, drawing on their concerns and issues to make the connection between politics and the things that are important to them. It prompts students to consider how they can make an impact on issues they care about and ultimately, how they can engage with the community to achieve positive change.

The PTD program continued throughout 2010, with PTD videos being made available on YouTube, a PTD Blog for teachers and online bookings. The VEC has employed a part-time officer to coordinate the deployment of course materials and outreach officers to schools delivering the program.

The education section of the VEC website had almost 11,500 unique page visits between 1 July 2010 and 31 December 2010. Pages within the education section provided 2,133 direct entries to the VEC website.

Services to registered political parties and candidates

Services to registered political parties and candidates

7

The VEC conducted a number of briefing sessions for registered political parties prior to the State election. Representatives from 10 of the 11 registered political parties attended these sessions, receiving information on:

- The VEC's preparations for the election
- Changes to legislation
- The role of Election Managers
- Postal voting arrangements
- Nomination procedures
- The registration of how-to-vote cards and group voting tickets
- The VEC's voter information campaign
- Complaints procedures
- Public funding of election expenses

Further information provided to registered political parties included lists of voting centres and joint voting centres with geo-codes, estimated voter numbers for each voting centre, interstate and overseas voting locations and region ballot paper colours.

A number of registered political parties took up the VEC's invitation to attend a demonstration on the VEC's electronically assisted voting facility during October.

An information session for independent candidates covering key timelines and procedures was held on Sunday, 7 November. Approximately 50 prospective candidates attended this session.

During the election period, the VEC published regular circulars for registered political parties and Legislative Council candidates. Election Managers had responsibility for keeping Legislative Assembly candidates informed of specific election activities and timelines.

Postal voting protocol

The VEC met with registered political parties in the lead-up to the State election. A major discussion item was the production and distribution of postal vote applications by registered political parties. Section 101 of the Electoral Act 2002 allows for a person other than the Commission to reproduce a postal vote application form and include it with other written material issued by that person or organisation. Historically, the three major registered political parties have produced and distributed postal vote applications during State elections. At the 2010 State election, three major parties and one independent candidate produced and distributed postal vote applications.

Prior to the 2006 State election, in order to minimise elector confusion about the origin of the application (i.e. whether it was from the VEC or a political party), the VEC introduced a protocol to provide guidance on the production and distribution of postal vote applications. The VEC protocol was again distributed to all registered political parties for the 2010 State election to help ensure that the following principles be observed. The postal vote application:

- Must contain the information detailed in Form K of the Electoral Regulations 2002
- Must not contain any political comment
- Must clearly identify the party or candidate distributing the application
- Must not contain a VEC logo
- May be distributed with other political information
- Must not contain any information that could be considered to be misleading
- Must be sent to the Victorian Electoral Commission promptly upon completion

To assist parties with the production of their postal vote applications, the VEC provided each registered political party with a template for a postal vote application to be used during the State election.

Parties and candidates were encouraged to discuss their proposed templates, including the envelopes, with the VEC prior to printing and distribution. All applications distributed by parties clearly indicated to electors that the mailing address for the completed application was back to the particular party. Applications distributed by the independent candidate were returned directly to the VEC.

A high number of postal vote applications processed by the VEC were 'party specific' applications. The VEC made arrangements with parties and candidates to ensure that the VEC received completed postal vote applications submitted to party offices as soon as possible on the day of receipt to ensure same day despatch of ballot material to electors. The VEC noted there were some delays in the receipt of completed applications from parties that led to delays in the despatch of ballot material. In some instances, this also resulted in electors submitting multiple applications to vote by post.

Information for candidates

Handbooks were produced for candidates and scrutineers. The handbooks were available from the VEC, election offices, at the information session for independent candidates and via the VEC's website. Changes to legislation, along with feedback received following the 2006 State election was considered in the development of material provided to candidates and scrutineers. The VEC provided candidate handbooks to political parties for distribution to endorsed candidates.

Register of political parties

The Electoral Act 2002 requires the VEC to establish and maintain a register of political parties. In order to qualify for registration, a political party must have a written constitution and at least 500 members who are Victorian electors, party members in accordance with the party's rules, and not members of another registered political party or of a party applying for registration.

It is not compulsory for political parties to be registered to contest an election, but registration gives a party a number of important entitlements, including:

- The right to have the party's name on ballot papers
- A requirement to nominate candidates and register how-to-vote cards centrally with the VEC
- Access to enrolment and voter information on a periodic basis
- Public funding for parties obtaining enough votes

There are 11 registered political parties in Victoria, 10 of which contested the 2010 election.

The nomination process

The VEC advertised for nominations prominently in all daily newspapers throughout Victoria on the day after the writ was issued. Election Managers provided prospective candidates with an information kit that included:

- Election Manager's contact details
- District or region nomination form
- Appointment of a Scrutineer form
- Electoral Roll confidentiality agreement
- Candidate Handbook
- Scrutineer Handbook
- VEC's how-to-vote card protocol
- How-to-vote card declaration form
- List of voting centres for the relevant district or region
- List of interstate and overseas voting locations
- Details of the number of issuing points at each voting centre in the district or region and an estimate of the number of votes expected to be cast
- District or region fact sheet
- Map of the electorate
- Forms related to group registration and lodgement of group voting tickets for region candidates

Election Managers offered to meet with each candidate as soon as possible after the acceptance of the candidate's nomination, in order to outline the election process and clarify any other matters.

Registered political parties were required to submit nominations directly to the VEC in either hardcopy or electronic form. Registered political parties were provided with an electronic application for recording of nominations for each district and region. This enabled parties to enter the nominations onto a USB key, which was directly loaded onto the VEC's Election Management System by VEC staff. The information was then checked against the hardcopy signed nominations.

The VEC provided independent candidates with a facility to complete a nomination form online. Candidates were guided through each part of the nomination form and could check and change details before final submission. Once the candidate was satisfied with their form, they could print the online form to lodge with the Election Manager. By scanning the barcode on the nomination form at the time of lodgement, details as entered by the candidate were loaded directly into the VEC's Election Management System. This streamlined the processing of nominations and reduced waiting times for candidates.

The close of nominations was midday, 11 November, 2010 for candidates endorsed by registered political parties, and midday, 12 November for other candidates. Appendix 14 contains a list of candidates for the 2010 State election.

Nominations

The VEC received a record 711 nominations for the 2010 Victorian State election, a slight increase on the 707 candidates in 2006. There were 502 candidates for the 88 Legislative Assembly (Lower House) Districts compared with 459 in 2006, and for the eight Legislative Council (Upper House) Regions, 209 candidates stood; a decrease from 248 in 2006.

A total of 624 candidates were endorsed by registered political parties, slightly fewer than in 2006 when there were 644 endorsed candidates. Eighty-seven candidates stood as independents, compared with 63 at the 2006 election.

Group registration and group voting tickets — Legislative Council

Two or more candidates nominating for the same region in the Legislative Council can request that their names be grouped on the ballot paper in a specified order. Group registration closed at midday, Thursday, 11 November, the same time as close of nominations for registered political parties. A total of 57 groups were registered across the eight Regions compared with 69 in 2006. Eastern Victoria, South Eastern Metropolitan, Western Metropolitan and Western Victoria Regions had the least, with six groups registered in each region. Northern Metropolitan Region had the highest number of groups for a region, with 10 groups registered.

A total of 52 groups were from registered political parties and 5 groups were registered by independent candidates. The Liberal and National Party registered combined groups in Eastern, Northern and Western Victoria Regions. Two independent candidates remained ungrouped.

All registered groups lodged group voting tickets with the VEC by midday on Sunday, 14 November, in accordance with the legislation. None of the groups chose to lodge multiple group voting tickets.

How-to-vote card registration

Registered how-to-vote cards (HTVC) are the only form of printed electoral material that can be lawfully handed out, distributed or otherwise made available within 400 metres of a voting centre on Election Day. Any candidate, person or organisation can register a HTVC. HTVCs carried by mobile early voting teams must also be registered.

A change to the Electoral Act 2002 required the VEC to publish all registered HTVCs on its website for this election. Information about the registration of HTVCs was provided:

- To registered political parties at briefings held prior to the State election
- To independent candidates attending the information session on 7 November
- To candidates by Election Managers directly and in the Candidate's Information Kit
- On the VEC website

The registration period for HTVCs was from Monday, 15 November, to midday on Friday, 19 November. A total of 1,101 HTVCs were registered for this election compared to 672 in 2006. All registered HTVCs were available at the VEC head office in Little Collins Street, Melbourne and were published on the VEC website in accordance with new legislation. A total of 1,081 HTVCs were registered by registered political parties or candidates and 20 cards were registered by other individuals or interest groups.

How to vote cards on the VEC website

The VEC developed a solution using its high speed scanners and the EMS database to help with the efficient administration and production of HTVCs on the VEC website.

The VEC processed more than 1,000 HTVCs during the registration period. The technology enabled the VEC to meet the legislative timelines and publish the information on the website.

Provision of electoral rolls to candidates

Each candidate in the 2010 State election was provided with the opportunity to obtain by email an electronic copy of the electoral roll for their relevant electorate, as allowed in legislation. Two text files were provided, which could be opened easily in Microsoft Excel, one in address order and one in name order. These were emailed on Saturday 13 November 2010, with instructions, to candidates whose nomination was finalised, confidentiality agreement signed and a valid email address provided. Thirty-three candidates used this service.

The seven day close of roll date restricts the time available for production of rolls for candidates. In conjunction with the task of processing the large number of enrolments received, the VEC was not able to provide rolls for candidates and political parties until 13 November. Requests for this information had been received by this time, for the purpose of campaigning.

The rolls were printed at the earliest possible time, beginning the weekend after the roll closed. The production of the hard copy rolls took five days of non-stop production, and the rolls were then distributed around the State. In order to produce the rolls earlier, legislative amendments would be required.

Public funding of election expenditure

The Electoral Act 2002 provides for the public funding of election expenses incurred by registered political parties and candidates contesting Victorian State elections.

For the Legislative Assembly (Lower House), registered political parties and independent candidates that receive four per cent or more of first-preference votes are entitled to public funding for each first-preference vote received. At the 2010 Victorian State election public funding was set at $1.4849 per first preference vote. For the Legislative Council (Upper House), in each region, any candidate in a group or as an independent who receives four per cent or more of first-preference votes is also entitled to public funding. The number of first-preference votes obtained by the first-named candidate in a group is determined by adding the above-the-line votes for that group to the number of first-preferences recorded below-the-line for the first-named candidate to calculate the entitlement.

In the case of a candidate endorsed by a registered political party, payment is made to the registered officer of the relevant political party. In the case of a candidate not endorsed by a registered political party, payment is made to the candidate.

Payment is dependent upon the VEC receiving an audited Statement of Expenditure (SOE), and an audit certificate that states that the auditor received full access to information and has no reason to believe that any matter in the SOE is incorrect.

Where the audited SOE shows that not less than the entitlement has been spent, a payment of $1.4849 for each first-preference vote received is made. Where the SOE reveals that an amount less than the entitlement has been spent, payment is for the amount specified in the SOE.

The deadline for applications for the funding of election expenses was 16 April, 2011. The VEC made payments of the entitlement within three working days of receipt of an audited SOE.

Services to the media

Services to the media

Services to the media

The media remains the primary source of electoral information for most Victorians. In an effort to ensure this information was as accurate and timely as possible, the VEC provided a range of services to the media including; briefing sessions, a media handbook, a dedicated media centre on the website, the distribution of media releases, media interviews and a tallyroom.

Media briefings

National and Regional media outlets were invited to a media briefing at the VEC early in October. Seventeen journalists attended and were briefed on legislative changes, details of the tallyroom and the results service. They were also given a first look at the electronically assisted voting service.

Two further media briefings were held to discuss the logistics of the tallyroom and ensure that each broadcaster was given a fair allocation of space according to their broadcasting requirements.

Media handbook

A media handbook was sent to every media outlet in Victoria with additional copies printed and sent out on demand. The handbook was slimmed down to a handy 40 pages from 601 pages in 2006 and concentrated on the most frequently asked questions and details of VEC initiatives. The media were encouraged to visit the VEC website for all other information.

A dedicated media centre was created for the website with profiles of every electorate in Victoria, historical information, maps and relevant staff contact details. The website had 3001 page views during the election period from September to December.

Media releases

Thirty-six media releases were issued to targeted contacts of national and regional media outlets to raise awareness of each stage of the election. Four key media releases were translated into 28 of the most widely spoken languages in Victoria and sent to 93 ethnic media outlets to promote key messages to culturally and linguistically diverse communities.

Interviews

During the election period VEC staff made themselves available for interview, achieving significant coverage across Victoria and interstate. Highlights included the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner providing radio interviews to 94 national and regional stations at well timed stages of the campaign.

On election night, the Electoral Commissioner was interviewed by Josephine Cafagna on ABC television and the Deputy Electoral Commissioner spoke with ABC Radio twice to update listeners on the progress of the count.

The tallyroom

The tallyroom at the Victory Room, in Etihad Stadium, provided a focal point for media on election night. ABC News (television and radio) broadcast live continuously throughout the evening with Sky News, Channel 7, Channel 9 and Channel 10 broadcasting live crosses. 3AW and MTR also had broadcasting presence all evening. The media outlets were responsible for their own set-up and operating costs.

In a first for a Victorian election, the VEC was honoured by Aunty Joy Murphy (a Wurundjeri Elder) opening the tallyroom with a traditional welcome to country. The welcome was broadcast live on ABC radio.

The electronic tally board was updated in real time and provided an impressive backdrop for the television crews. Peter Ryan, leader of the National Party, chose this position to give a press conference at the end of the evening. Two smaller tally boards were arranged in front of the radio stations and the print/online journalist seating area.

Following the low public attendance at the last election, a reduced seating area was provided. Around 100 people braved the weather to watch the election coverage and extra seating was also provided in the stadium where the tally board was projected onto the large screens.

Tally Room

The VEC's tally room venue (the Victory Room at Etihad Stadium) had physical constraints on the size and shape of the actual tallyboard, as well as the viewing of the results data.

The VEC developed an electronic tallyboard application that projected results data in a dynamic manner and enabled the use of the multiple audio visual outlets to display the results, including the main scoreboard at Etihad Stadium. In addition, the VEC implemented the same software on an interactive Microsoft Surface table that allowed users to pick and choose the results to be displayed.

Virtual Tallyroom

The VEC created a website dedicated to the publication of results — the Virtual Tallyroom (VTR). The site also provided the media access to up to date results information, which were used for the broadcasts from the actual tally room. The VTR was designed to provide quick and secure access to results as they were received by the VEC on election night and during the following week.

On election night, the website and results files were updated at no more than five minute intervals, receiving more than 1.5 million hits from nearly 78,000 visits to the website.

Human resource management

9

The VEC has approximately 270 Senior Election Officials (SEO) on standby, who have been recruited and trained for engagement as Election Managers during State and Council elections. From this pool of SEOs, individuals were selected for appointment to management roles for Legislative Assembly and Legislative Council electorates.

Election Managers and Region Coordinators

Appointment and training of Election Managers

A total of 56 Election Managers were appointed to conduct elections for 88 members of the Legislative Assembly. Each Election Manager was responsible for one or two Districts; most Election Managers in metropolitan areas were responsible for two Districts, while most Election Managers in rural areas with larger geographic boundaries were allocated one district.

All Election Managers completed extensive training for the State election, comprising home study in conjunction with a series of seminars at the VEC (one two-day seminar, one three-day seminar and a one day briefing in late October).

Assistant Election Managers from the VEC's pool of SEOs were appointed to assist each Election Manager. One or two Assistant Election Managers were appointed for each office. The Assistant Election Managers also completed the VEC's training program, but did not attend the final briefing in October.

The Election Manager's role is to establish offices and appoint staff to facilitate the smooth running of the election for their electorates. They issue early votes, process independent candidates' nominations, organise the draw for the order of the candidates' names on the ballot papers, appoint and train voting centre staff, and make arrangements for establishing voting centres for Election Day. On Election Day, the Election Manager is responsible for the conduct of the election and the counting of votes for those electorates for which they have responsibility.

Immediately following Election Day, Election Managers checked, sorted and despatched completed ballot material to other electorates, finalised payroll tasks for election officials and conducted counts for postal, early and other declaration votes. For the first time, all ballot papers were rechecked, even if a preference distribution was not required. A total of 44 preference distributions were conducted for district electorates by the relevant Election Managers. No recounts were required.

Appointment and training of Region Coordinators

A new role of Region Coordinator, with responsibility for rechecking all region ballot papers for their appointed region, was created for the 2010 election. The Region Coordinator was responsible for receiving region ballot papers from Election Managers, supervising the checking and reconciliation of those ballot papers and despatching those marked 'below-the-line' to the central computer counting venue. An Assistant Region Coordinator was appointed to assist each Region Coordinator.

Region Coordinators and Assistant Region Coordinators all completed two days of comprehensive face-to-face training plus home study.

Support for Election Managers and Region Coordinators

Election Support Officers

Eleven Election Support Officers (ESOs) provided support to the VEC's Election Managers and Region Coordinators throughout the election. Located at the VEC's Melbourne office, the ESOs were the central point of contact between the Election Managers / Region Coordinators, the Electoral Commissioner and other VEC staff. They assisted Election Managers and Region Coordinators with procedural and other complex issues.

Helpdesk

Seven Helpdesk operators provided support to Election Managers and Region Coordinators. Principally, they assisted the Election Managers and Region Coordinators with the operation of the VEC's Election Management System and other technical issues.

Election officials

Recruitment

Election Managers and Region Coordinators were responsible for recruiting administrative staff to work in their offices, and Election Managers were also required to recruit staff for voting centres on Election Day.

In addition, Election Managers were able to appoint Election Liaison Officers (ELO) who visited voting centres on Election Day. The ELO's role was to alert the Election Manager to instances where voting centres may have needed extra resources and deliver them where appropriate, and to ensure procedures were applied consistently.

To assist them in this task, the VEC developed job specifications to assess potential candidates and to ensure that Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) principles were considered in the selection of all staff. A recruitment company was also engaged to assist with the recruitment of suitable staff who were employed on a casual basis. The company was provided with job specifications to ensure that staff recruited met the VEC's requirements. Election Managers in areas with large numbers of people from culturally diverse backgrounds appointed multi-lingual staff where possible.

Apart from agency staff, all appointments were drawn from people who had completed the VEC's online Expression of Interest. Persons who had worked on previous elections were invited to register their interest in working on the election, and provided with a login that would enable their previous work history with the VEC to be linked to their registration.

The Expression of Interest Register was also advertised to the wider public, through the VEC's website, universities, colleges and schools, and through multicultural organisations.

The VEC created new part-day roles for this election to address the higher demand often experienced in voting centres during the morning and to assist with counting activities after 6.00pm on election night. A total of 2,320 of the 16,993 officials on Election Day were appointed to part-day roles. A list of Election Managers is included as Appendix 15.

Training of election officials

For the first time, election officials were required to complete relevant online training. There were three streams of online training, depending on the specific appointment: one for Voting Centre Managers (VCMs), Assistant Voting Centre Managers (AVCMs) and ELOs, one for Declaration Issuing Officers, and one for other election officials. Some election officials appointed to part-day roles were not required to complete online training.

In addition, Election Managers conducted a three-hour training session for their VCMs, AVCMs and ELOs. The VEC developed a standard training package, which included a PowerPoint presentation and practical activities, and arranged the hire of projectors to assist Election Managers with their training. This ensured that training sessions were conducted in a professional and consistent manner across the State.

All election officials were provided with a manual, which covered voting centre procedures in detail, and a 30 minute DVD which provided an overview of procedures, with an emphasis on good customer service.

Voting Centre Managers and ELOs evaluated the work performance of all election officials, in order to determine their suitability for future employment. These details provided the VEC with a strong database repository for future elections.

Measures to ensure impartiality

In 2009, the VEC was granted an exemption from provisions of the Equal Opportunity Act 1984 to be able to employ only those personnel who were not engaged in political activities.

This enabled the VEC to advertise and appoint suitable, politically-impartial staff. The exemption applies to the appointment of all VEC staff, including Election Managers and election officials.

Election officials and election casuals are appointed to a variety of roles at the time of an election. The VEC's Disclosure of Political Activities brochures and forms were sent out for completion to all prospective Election officials and election casuals prior to appointment for the 2010 State Election. This information was also available on the VEC website. A total of 21,217 Disclosure of Political Activities forms were completed and returned.

Of all the Disclosure of Political Activities forms received, 236 prospective appointees were initially disqualified. Requests for review were subsequently received from 48 disqualified applicants of which 15 decisions were overturned and offers of appointment subsequently made. A final total of 221 prospective appointees were disqualified from being appointed as an election official or election casual.

No legal proceedings alleging bias by Election Managers or election officials in the conduct of their duties for parliamentary elections have been lodged in the last 16 years.

The VEC has not been involved in any breach of the Equal Opportunity Act in relation to any employment matter in the last 20 years. Nor has any of its Election Managers or election officials.

Online recruitment

The VEC provided an online application for prospective employees to register for appointment as either election officials or as casual workers. The VEC received more than 30,000 expressions of interest and the application allowed the VEC to efficiently manage this central pool of prospective appointees and reduced the considerable administrative effort required to appoint staff.

Online training

An online training application was developed to train over 13,000 election officials appointed at voting centres on Election day. The software was provided by a third party company and was considerably enhanced by the VEC to suit the training requirements. Election officials undertook the training in a four week period.

Payroll

The payroll system used for election officials appointed to conduct the 2010 State election was administered by the VEC's Finance and Budget Branch and ensured that the 16,993 election casuals and election officials appointed to conduct the State election were paid within two weeks of the election. Election casuals were paid fortnightly. The system also provided for the production of group certificates and special reports for the VEC.

The VEC maintained records in the Election Management System to ensure that obligations relating to employment records were met, and to assist with any enquiries received from election officials.

Occupational health and safety

All Election Managers completed a training session in Occupational Health and Safety (OH&S) covering items such as Victorian OH&S legislative requirements, hazard identification, risk assessment and control strategies in the workplace.

Interstate secondments

During elections, electoral commissions provide staff to other jurisdictions to provide expert assistance and to gain election experience. The VEC would like to thank the Electoral Commissions for releasing their staff for the 2010 Victorian State election. Their experience and hard work was invaluable to the conduct of the election.

Staff feedback

Feedback received from Election Managers often provides a useful perspective on the VEC's delivery of election services and leads to improvements. As part of the evaluation of the State election, the VEC conducted debriefing sessions with Election Managers and Region Coordinators. In addition, Election Managers and Region Coordinators provided comprehensive written feedback which included comments and recommendations for future consideration.

Election officials were also surveyed as part of the VEC's independent evaluation conducted after the election. Results of the evaluation are summarised in Section 14.

Section 10
Counting the votes

Counting on Election Day

Counting of votes commenced on election night after the close of voting at 6.00pm. Ordinary votes issued in Election Day voting centres were counted in voting centres. Three counts were conducted as follows:

1. First preference count — Legislative Assembly
2. Two candidate preferred count — Legislative Assembly
3. First preference count — Legislative Council

After the counting of first-preference votes for the Legislative Assembly, a two-candidate-preferred count was conducted, with preferences distributed to the two candidates considered 'most likely' to be in the lead after the distribution of preferences. The purpose of the two-candidate-preferred count was to provide an early indication of the result of the election, and also to provide detailed information for political parties and analysts. The final voting centre count conducted on election night was the first-preference count for the Legislative Council.

Counting of postal votes commenced at 6.00pm on election night in election offices. Also commencing at 6.00pm, early votes were sorted to their correct district and region and reconciled on election night in preparation for the declaration exchange.

Seventy percent of all postal votes were counted on election weekend. With the exception of Bentleigh District, early votes that did not need to be forwarded to other electorates were counted on the Monday following Election Day. Counting of early votes for Bentleigh District was commenced on Sunday, as the Electoral Commissioner considered the outcome of this seat was pivotal to the overall election result.

Declaration votes

Declaration votes are all votes other than ordinary votes (those cast by electors voting at a centre appointed for their own district on Election Day). They are called declaration votes because the elector makes a declaration stating their entitlement to vote. There are several types of declaration votes, and the method of processing each type differs.

Postal votes are cast by electors who have applied to vote by post and have been mailed ballot papers by the VEC. The elector places the ballot papers in the declaration envelope and posts it to the VEC. The postal vote declarations are forwarded to the appropriate election office, where the elector's signature on the declaration is checked against the application.

Early votes are cast at early voting centres before Election Day. The elector makes a verbal declaration that he or she is eligible to cast an early vote. Early votes cast outside the elector's district are forwarded after Election Day to the appropriate election office for counting.

Absent votes are cast by voters at voting centres outside their own Districts on Election Day. Most absent votes are included in declaration envelopes, but where absent votes are issued from voting centres with access to an electronic copy of the State-wide roll, ballot papers are combined for the same electorate and enclosed in specially designed envelopes. After Election Day, the envelopes containing absent ballot papers are sent to the appropriate Election Managers.

Electors who are found to have already been marked on the roll when they attend to vote complete a 'Marked as voted' declaration stating that they have not voted previously at this election. These are verified before being either included into the count or rejected.

Postal votes that were postmarked Sunday, 28 November, were checked for the date the declaration was witnessed. If the declaration was witnessed on or before Election Day, the postal vote was admitted for further scrutiny in accordance with new provisions included in the Electoral Act 2002 in 2010.

Provisional votes are cast by voters who complete a provisional enrolment/vote form and vote on the day. After Election Day, the provisional enrolment/vote envelopes - including the ballot papers - are sent to the VEC to check whether the voter is entitled to be enrolled and to vote. They are then returned to the appropriate election office with advice on entitlement.

Legislative changes were made in 2010 enabling people who could prove their identity to enrol on-the-day to cast a provisional vote if their name could not be found on the roll anywhere in Victoria. After Election Day, provisional vote applications were checked to ensure electors were eligible to enrol, prior to the votes being admitted for further scrutiny.

The introduction of on-the-day enrolment and provisional voting meant that there were no un-enrolled declaration votes in 2010. The number of not-on-roll absent and early votes was greatly reduced as access to a whole of State roll enabled Election Officials to check whether electors were enrolled prior to issuing one of these types of votes.

Note: Early and absent votes admitted to count represents electors whose details were found on the roll in subsequent checks. On-the-day enrolment provisional votes admitted to count represents electors who were eligible to enrol and could prove their identity.*

At the 2010 State election, all early voting centres were equipped with computers containing the electoral roll for the entire State. All voting centres were equipped with a personal digital assistant (PDA) containing the entire State roll for look-up purposes, enabling the entitlement of all voters to be checked before they voted.

Netbooks (mini computers) were provided to 109 voting centres and were used at most mobile voting centres. The netbooks gave election officials access to a central copy of the entire State roll to mark each elector's name directly. The netbooks greatly assisted in ensuring correct elector enrolment details for declaration votes and eliminated the requirement for absent electors to complete a written declaration when voting. Election officials could also see if an elector had been marked off as having voted previously.

The substantial drop in the number of electors who presented to vote on Election Day unaware that they were not on the roll may be attributable to the recent federal election. To ensure the number of electors enrolling on the day remains manageable within the voting centre, it is essential that the VEC pursues direct enrolment update arrangements, and the enrolment on the day process remains as a savings provision (i.e. only applying to electors that cannot be found on the roll).

Online roll mark off

The VEC developed an application that enabled election staff to query the entire State roll and in real time, mark off electors as having voted. The application was rolled out during the early voting period and on Election Day using 1,080 netbooks. Nearly 350 netbooks were used at early voting centres and around 550,000 early votes were processed. On Election Day, the VEC used more than 750 netbooks linked back to the VEC over the Telstra NextG wireless network. The online roll mark-off application was used to process almost 200,000 absent and ordinary votes.

Counting after Election Day

Further primary counts were carried out after Election Day, when Election Managers received declaration votes from other electorates or the postal voting centre and completed any processing required before counting. By Thursday 2 December, five days after Election Day, 93.6% of all primary counts had been completed.

Rechecks

All district and region ballot papers were further rechecked by election officials following the completion of primary counting. Results were adjusted following each recheck to correct any discrepancies in counting or sorting identified during the recheck process.

Preference distributions

Preference distributions to determine the result of an election are required in each Legislative Assembly district where no candidate obtains an absolute majority (more than 50 per cent) of the first-preference votes. Preference distributions were conducted in 44 Districts.

Following the re-check, the candidate with the fewest first-preference votes is excluded, and votes for that candidate are distributed to the remaining candidates according to the preferences on the excluded candidate's ballot papers. This process continues until one candidate obtains an absolute majority of the formal votes.

In 13 Districts, the preference distribution reached a result while there were still more than two candidates remaining.

Two-party-preferred counts

The VEC conducted six two-party-preferred (2PP) counts for the 2010 State election. The purpose of the 2PP count was to show, for each district and for the State as a whole, how the vote was divided between the ALP and the Liberal and National parties, taking into account the preferences of people who vote for minor parties and independents.

The VEC used two candidate preferred (2CP) or preference distribution results for many Districts but conducted 2PP counts where 2CP or preference distribution results did not show how the vote was divided between the ALP and the Liberal and National parties. There were eight such counts required after the 2006 State election.

The 2PP counts took place once all counting in each district had been completed. Further details are included in the section on analysis of results in this report.

District recounts

No recounts were requested or required in any of the 88 Legislative Assembly Districts.

Region count

First-preference votes for the Legislative Council were counted at voting centres and at election offices on election night. All first-preference counts for region ballot papers took place in the district.

For the 2010 State election, the VEC established one Region Recheck Centre in each of the eight Regions. On completion of the first-preference count, and commencing the Monday after Election Day, all region ballot papers held in each district election office in the State, up to and including election night, were transferred to one of the eight Region Recheck Centres.

A full recheck of all region ballot papers took place in the Region Recheck Centres. During the recheck, all votes were kept in their particular parcels. No amalgamation of votes took place at the Region Recheck Centre. Each individual ballot paper was checked for correct sorting and all ballot papers were recounted.

As the recheck was completed, the ballot papers marked below-the-line were separated from those marked above-the-line and from informal ballot papers. Individual parcels containing below-the-line ballot papers were transferred to the centralised computer-count centre at Etihad Stadium commencing Friday, 3 December with the final transfer of below-the-line ballot papers taking place on Thursday, 9 December.

All formal ballot papers marked above-the-line, and informal ballot papers remained in the Region Recheck Centres. If a recount had been required, these ballot papers would have been transported to the computer-count centre. Reconciliation of all below-the-line ballot papers was undertaken at the computer-count centre for each parcel of votes. Once reconciled, the below-the-line ballot papers were batched in preparation for data entry into the VEC's computer-count application. No amalgamation of votes took place in the computer-count centre.

Three teams of 20 data-entry operators were established for the computerized count. Each team was responsible for data-entry of ballot papers for two or more Regions. The computer-count application identified ballot papers deemed to be informal during data-entry. Once data-entry had been completed for each batch of ballot papers, the informal papers were passed to the informal checking team for further scrutiny and if declared to be informal by the Election Manager were removed from the batch and counted as informal papers.

All below-the-line ballot papers were entered into the computer count application twice. The computer-count application identified any discrepancies between first round and second round data entry. The data entry operator was able to review the preferences entered and, if incorrectly entered, rectify the issue prior to saving the preferences from the ballot paper.

Once all below-the-line ballot papers had been data entered a second time, the total number of above-the-line ticket votes for each group for each voting centre or declaration parcel of votes was uploaded into the computer-count system. The total ticket votes for each voting centre or declaration parcel of votes consisted of the above-the-line ballot papers held at the Region Recheck Centre, plus the number of above-the-line ballot papers identified at the count centre.

Once all above-the-line and below-the-line data had been entered into the computer-count application for each region, the total number of informal ballot papers for each region was uploaded into the system by voting centre or declaration parcel of votes. The total informal votes comprised of those held at the Region Recheck Centre, and those identified at the computer count centre.

Once all ballot papers to be included in the calculation of results had been included in the computer-count application, a final reconciliation of all ballot papers for each region took place prior to the results being calculated. Scrutineers were able to observe all aspects of the count.

The calculation of results commenced at 12.00noon on Tuesday, 14 December. The results were calculated in alphabetical order. All eight calculations were completed by approximately 1.00pm. Results were published as 'provisional' awaiting the declaration of results at 4.00pm Wednesday, 15 December.

Computer count

For the 2010 Region (Upper House) count, the VEC implemented wide-ranging changes to the processes to handle, manage and track the Upper House ballot papers. The VEC's computer-count application was enhanced to support these new processes.

The VEC also developed a new application to manage the tracking, reconciliation, creation and processing of ballot papers and carried out extensive testing in preparation for the count. The software was used successfully during the Upper House count at Etihad Stadium.

Count process summary and transparency

Scrutineers are permitted to be present at all stages of counting. For the Legislative Assembly, preliminary first-preference counts were conducted in voting centres and election offices. All ballot papers were further rechecked for correct sorting and counting. All Legislative Assembly results were progressively displayed on the VEC website. For the Legislative Council, preliminary first-preference counts, above and below-the-line were conducted in voting centres and in election offices.

Prior to calculating provisional upper-house results, all candidates and registered political parties were provided with the opportunity to collect a comprehensive set of reconciliation reports including:

- Full region reconciliation reports showing the total votes expected in the count for each region
- Ticket allocation reports showing the number of ballot papers marked above the line for each group and the preference allocation according to their ticket
- Primary region results by voting centre and other vote types for all Regions
- Rechecked region results by voting centre and other vote types for all Regions
- Primary district results by voting centre and other vote types for all Districts
- Rechecked district results by voting centre and other vote types for all Districts
- A comparison of total district and region votes by voting centre and other vote types, including totals for District Primary, District 2CP, District Recheck, Region Primary and Region Recheck
- Rejected declaration votes by district
- Statewide two-party preferred result

Following the calculation of provisional results for each region on Tuesday 14 December, the full distribution of preferences for each region was made available for interested parties for review. The reports were also available on the VEC website.

No requests for recounts were received prior to the formal declaration of the result for each region on Wednesday, 15 December.

The return of the writs

The writs for the State election were returned on Friday, 17 December 2010 to the Lieutenant Governor, The Honourable Chief Justice, Marilyn Warren AC.

Statistical overview of the election

Participation and informal voting

The voter turnout rate for the State as a whole was 92.96%, which was a slight increase on the 92.73% recorded at the 2006 State election. This result reversed the trend of declining participation that has been occurring since 1992. The introduction of election day enrolment contributed to the higher turnout in 2010. Voter turnout was highest in the eastern and northern fringes of the metropolitan area and in parts of western Victoria, with Yan Yean having the highest rate in the State (95.05%). The lowest rate was in Melbourne District (86.93%), and, as in previous elections, low turnout was concentrated in the inner urban Districts, where the population is very mobile. Voter turnout was also below 90% in Broadmeadows and Dandenong, which are the type of district that usually has solid participation rate. See Appendix 16 for voter turnout and informal voting by electorate.

The informal voting rate for the Legislative Assembly was 4.96%, which is the highest ever recorded for a Lower House election. The previous record was 4.56% in 2006. In contrast, the informal voting rate for the Legislative Council fell sharply from 4.28% in 2006 to 3.38% in 2010 – the lowest rate since the 3.37% recorded in 1999. It seems that voters are becoming accustomed to the Senate-style voting system introduced in 2006.

There was a record number (502) of candidates for the Legislative Assembly in 2010, and it is worth investigating whether lengthy ballot papers increased the informal vote. In local government elections, there is a clear pattern of the informal voting rate increasing where there are more than ten candidates, and increasing sharply where there are more than 15. However, in the State election, where the maximum number of candidates was ten, there was a very weak positive correlation (0.15696027) between the informal voting rate and the number of candidates. In Regional and rural Districts the correlation was stronger at 0.505115968.

The geographical distribution of the informal vote was uneven, ranging from 2.94% in Hawthorn to 8.31% in Niddrie. The informal vote was lowest in the affluent suburbs to the east and south-east of the CBD. As in previous elections, the informal vote was highest in the outer northern, western and south-eastern suburbs. There was a positive correlation (0.563800451) between the informal vote and the proportion of residents who are not proficient in English. It should be noted that this correlation is not as strong as in the 2006 election, when it was 0.76383019. In six of the eleven Districts where more than 7% of the population is not fluent in English, the informal voting dropped in 2010. These Districts were mostly in the northern and western suburbs, where the VEC's CALD community engagement workshops were concentrated in the lead-up to the election.

An analysis of ballot papers

The VEC examined the informal ballot papers for nine Legislative Assembly Districts and two Legislative Council Regions, with the aims of measuring the incidence of various types of informal voting and comparing the results with those at the 2006 State election. For the sake of comparability, the VEC chose the same electorates as in 2006.

Informal District ballot papers

In the survey of informal ballot papers, the VEC used the same categories as in its analyses of informal ballot papers since the 2006 State election. A few ballot papers fell into more than one category (for instance, including both a numbering error and a comment); these were sorted to what appeared to be the more important category for that ballot paper. These categories are described in Figure 51.

Category	Description
Blank
Numbers – 1 only
Numbers – insufficient	Ballot papers starting with 1 but including insufficient numbers to constitute a formal vote.
Numbers – apparently deliberate	Ballot papers including number sequences such all '1's, or '0', or '1', '10', '300', which indicate an intention to cast an informal vote.
Numbers – other
Ticks/crosses – preference	Ballot papers indicating a clear preference for a candidate through a single tick or cross.
Ticks/crosses – apparently deliberate	Ballot papers with ticks or crosses in every square, indicating an intention to reject all the candidates.
Ticks/crosses – other
Writing – apparently deliberate	Ballot papers with writing or drawings indicating opposition to all the candidates, including those with a cross over the whole paper.
Writing – other	Vague scrawls not indicating any intention.
Administrative error	Ballot papers which are arguably formal.

Blank ballot papers were the largest category of informal votes, making up over a quarter of the total. Blank ballot papers were the largest group in four of the nine Districts surveyed. The bulk of these ballot papers were presumably deliberately informal, though they might include ballot papers lodged by people who had difficulties with the whole voting process.

Ballot papers with a single number "1" were the second largest category overall, and were the largest in five of the nine Districts. These include ballot papers cast by voters who misapplied the way to vote above the line for the Upper House.

The third largest category was "Writing – deliberate", with 12.83% of the total. Many of these crossed out the whole ballot paper, or included drawings. Very few ballot papers explicitly criticised compulsory voting.

The fourth largest category was "numbers – other", with 12.44% of the total. These votes were informal due to a variety of numbering errors, such as including two 1s, or skipping or duplicating numbers. The voters in this category do not seem to have spoiled their ballots on purpose, but to have made an unsuccessful attempt at a formal vote.

Administrative error	112 (0.74%)

Numbering errors were by far the largest of these categories, comprising over half of the total. Ticks and crosses were about 10% of the total – surprisingly small considering that it is common to fill in forms with ticks and that in many countries ticks or crosses are the correct way to vote. The VEC's communication and education teams had worked particularly hard in this area in the lead-up to the election, with a specific objective to reduce the number of ticks and crosses on ballot papers.

Figure 54 groups the various categories of apparently deliberate informal votes and shows the result when the blank ballot papers are added to the marked ballot papers that were deliberately informal. It also groups the ballot papers that indicated a clear preference (either through the number "1" or a single tick or cross).

Category	Number
Apparently deliberate	3,396 (22.43%)
Apparently deliberate including blank	7,197 (47.53%)
Indicating preference	5,688 (37.57%)

Almost half of the ballot papers appear to have been deliberately informal. About three eighths expressed a clear preference, but their votes could not be included under electoral law.

The incidence of categories of informal votes varied by district. By grouping the Districts into inner urban (Brunswick, Melbourne, Northcote, Richmond), rural (Gippsland East, Mildura, Rodney, Shepparton) and Ferntree Gully, it is possible to discern clear patterns.

Category	Inner urban	Rural	Ferntree Gully
Blank	1,487 (23.21%)	1,627 (24.18%)	687 (34.26%)
Numbers	3,127 (48.8%)	3,614 (53.72%)	844 (42.09%)
Ticks/ crosses	782 (12.2%)	620 (9.22%)	137 (6.83%)
Apparently deliberate	1,553 (24.24%)	1,355 (20.14%)	488 (24.34%)
Apparently deliberate including blank	3,040 (47.44%)	2,982 (44.32%)	1,175 (58.6%)

Ferntree Gully was quite different from the other Districts, with much higher proportions of blank and apparently deliberate informal votes, and conversely lower proportions of ballot papers indicating a preference. The rural Districts had the highest proportion of numbering errors and the lowest proportion of apparently deliberate informals. The inner urban Districts had the highest proportion of ticks and crosses (possibly because of the greater numbers of overseas-born residents) and also the highest percentage of votes indicating a preference.

Comparison with the informal ballot paper survey for the 2006 State election reveals significant shifts.

The proportion of "1 only" votes – the largest single category in 2006 – was substantially lower in 2010. It appears that voters are becoming accustomed to the differing voting systems for the Upper and Lower Houses, and that fewer voters think that they can vote in the same way for their district as for their region. There are fewer numbering errors, ticks and crosses and indications of preferences than in 2006, suggesting that the VEC's education and information campaign had an effect. The most dramatic change was an increase in the proportions of blank and apparently deliberate informal votes, which combined comprise almost half of the total. The overall increase in the informal vote can be largely explained by this rise in the number of voters who purposely spoiled their votes.

Informal Region ballot papers

Region ballot papers are more complex than District ballot papers, with voters being able to vote either above or below the line on the ballot paper. There are more ways in which voters can make mistakes, and consequently more categories of informal votes. The 18 categories of informal votes used in the survey are included in Figure 56. The results of the ballot paper survey can be seen in Figure 57.

11

Blank ballot papers were by far the largest category, comprising almost half of the total. In contrast, only a quarter of the District ballot papers were blank. Possibly the size of the Region ballot papers deterred some voters from attempting them.

The second largest category was 'Writing – deliberate', which made up almost one fifth of the total. These ballot papers ranged from a simple crossing out of the ballot paper, to drawings, to detailed text.

The third largest category was below-the-line '1 only' ballot papers at 11.72%. These were people who appeared to have misapplied the direction to vote '1' above the line, and to have voted for the lead candidate in their preferred group below the line.

A quarter of the informal votes were the result of numbering errors. Only 7% were ticks and crosses – a smaller proportion than for the Districts because on the Region ballot paper a single tick or cross above the line is a formal vote.

Apparently deliberate informal votes were 26.66% of the total. If blank votes are added, more than 70% of the informal votes were probably deliberate.

About one seventh of the informal votes indicated a clear preference, either as a number '1' or a tick or cross below the line. This is a much lower proportion than for the Districts, probably because it is easy for voters to vote '1' above the line.

The ease of voting above the line led to a significant difference between the incidence of informal votes above the line and those below the line. Only 8.9% of the ballot papers surveyed were above the line, while 23.29% were below the line. The difference is still more marked if the formal and informal votes are combined. For the two Regions surveyed, only 0.34% of the above-the-line votes (2,773 of 820,725) were informal. By contrast, 19.29% of the below-the-line votes (7,254 of 37,604) were informal.

There were significant differences between the two Regions surveyed. Western Metropolitan Region, which had the second highest informal voting rate in the State (4.64%), had a markedly higher proportion of accidental informal votes. Western Victoria had fewer informal votes overall and more of those were deliberately informal.

Between 2006 and 2010 there was a dramatic shift in the composition of the informal vote. In 2006 more than half the votes appear to have been cast by voters who tried to vote correctly, but got it wrong. Below-the-line '1 only' votes were the second largest category, comprising more than 27% of the total. Another significant group, at 5.84%, were those voters who wrote multiple sequences of 1 to 5 in the groups of squares below the line. All such categories were much smaller in 2010. The number of '1 only' votes fell by almost two-thirds in absolute terms, and by 15.64 percentage points. The number of repetitions of sequences was more than halved. Votes indicating a preference declined from a third to a seventh of the total. Conversely, deliberately informal votes increased significantly in raw numbers and even more in percentage terms. Including blank ballot papers, the proportion of votes that were probably deliberately informal increased from 49.35% to 71.15%.

Thus, the total number of informal votes decreased, and most of those who did vote informally did so on purpose. These results indicate that voters are becoming accustomed to the Upper House system, received the information they needed from the VEC's information campaign, and were much less likely than in 2006 to make mistakes when voting.

How-to-vote card conformity survey

The VEC examined formal ballot papers for eight Districts for their degree of conformity with registered how-to-vote (HTV) cards. Only ballot papers that exactly followed a registered card were counted as conforming. Some candidates did not register a card, or registered an open card not allocating preferences, and these votes were not included.

Only 38.7% of voters in these eight Districts followed HTV cards. Most voters knew which party they wanted to support, but decided the order of their preferences for themselves.

HTV card conformity was strongest among supporters of the major parties, with 47.8% of National voters complying with their party's cards, 44.8% of Liberal voters, and 41% of ALP voters. The highest compliance rate was 55.8% of National voters in Rodney.

Voters for the other parties tended to be much less compliant with their party's HTV cards. Only 24.5% of Greens voters followed their party's advice. In four of the eight Districts the Greens registered open cards. Compliance rates for most of the other parties were less than 20%, with 3.2% for the newly registered Sex Party. The exception was the Country Alliance, with a 43.1% compliance rate.

The picture for independent candidates was mixed. Mr Craig Ingram was the sitting member for Gippsland East, and 33.9% of his voters followed his HTV card. Mr Glenn Milne and Mr Doug Tonge in Mildura scored solid votes, and about a quarter of their voters followed their cards. Mr Phil Cleary (former member for the Commonwealth Division of Wills) scored a 19.7% compliance rate in Brunswick. Other independent candidates gained very few votes and even fewer voters following their cards.

Several candidates issued split tickets, giving their voters the option of voting two ways. The results of these split tickets can be seen in Figure 61.

Organisations are entitled to register HTV cards, and several organisations did so in the surveyed Districts. These organisations advocated a vote for a particular candidate, but with a different order of preferences from the candidate's own card. Figure 62 compares the number of voters following the party's card and the organisation's card. Clearly, voters were much more inclined to follow the HTV card of the candidate they supported.

Figure 63 compares HTV card conformity at the 2006 and 2010 elections. In 2010 there was a significant decline in the proportion of voters following HTV cards. The decrease was most marked among ALP, Family First and Greens voters, while HTVC conformity held up among Liberal and National voters.

Donkey votes

A donkey vote is a vote cast by a voter who numbers the squares down the ballot paper, without caring about the nature of the candidates on offer. Candidates are pleased if they get the top spot on the ballot paper when the draw for position takes place, because they will have the advantage of the donkey vote. The size of the donkey vote has been a matter for discussion.

The VEC counted the donkey votes as part of its survey of ballot papers. To measure real donkey votes, it is necessary to distinguish them from votes following party advice and from votes that were logically in this order given the nature of the candidates. In the Districts surveyed, none of the lead candidates' HTV cards were in donkey vote order, and in none of those Districts would a vote in that order been a likely logical choice. It is also necessary to allow for the effects of randomness. With two candidates, there are only two possible orders of numbers (1, 2 and 2, 1). The number of possible combinations increases exponentially with the number of candidates, so that with eight candidates there are 40,320 permutations. In Figure 64, the proportion attributable to random variation has been subtracted.

In the Districts surveyed, the median donkey vote was 1% of the total formal vote. The donkey vote varied widely, from 0.07% in Rodney to 2.59% in Shepparton. In Districts where lead candidates were from minor parties (Family First and the Sex Party), the donkey vote comprised a high proportion of the votes for that party (a median of 17.01%) but a lower proportion of the total vote (a median of 0.52%). In Districts where the lead candidates were from major parties (the ALP and The Nationals), the donkey vote made up a lower proportion of the votes for that party (a median of 4.47%) but a higher proportion of the total votes (a median of 1.49%). Some of these may have been cast by voters who recognised and supported the party, but who could not be bothered following a HTV card or thinking about the order of their preferences.

Below-the-line votes

The proportion of voters deciding to vote below the line on their Region ballot paper decreased from 5% of total formal votes in 2006 to 4.04% in 2010. There was significant variation between Regions, with Northern Metropolitan (5.74%) and Southern Metropolitan (5.51%) having by far the highest rates of below-the-line voting, and Western Victoria (2.97%) having the lowest rate. Voters for the ALP and the Liberal/National coalition were the most likely to vote above the line, following the advice of the how-to-vote cards that would have been handed to them at nearly every voting centre. More than 10% of the Greens voters voted below the line, and the Greens voters alone made up almost a third of the total below-the-line votes. Voters for the smaller parties and Independents were more inclined than average to vote below the line.

Analysis of results

Changes in Parliament

Although there was a substantial swing and a change of Government at the State election, the turnover of members was less than might be expected. Changes were concentrated in the Legislative Assembly, where nine members stepped down when the term of Parliament expired (including Mr Craig Langdon, who vacated his Ivanhoe seat in August 2010 and whose place was not filled before the State election), 13 were defeated at the election, and 22 new members were elected (including the Hon. Justin Madden, who transferred from the Legislative Council). The Legislative Council had settled down after the changes to its structure in 2006. There were only two retirements (including Mr Madden), four sitting members were defeated and six new members were elected.

Overall, there were 10 retirements at the State election. Seven of the retiring members belonged to the ALP, two to the Liberal Party and one to The Nationals. The members who did not recontest included two Ministers (Mr Peter Batchelor and Mr Bob Cameron), a former Speaker of the Legislative Assembly (Ms Judy Maddigan) and the 'Father of the House' (Mr Ken Jasper, who had held Murray Valley since 1976).

Of the 118 parliamentarians who did stand at the State election, 101 were re-elected and 17 were defeated. Fifteen of the defeated members belonged to the ALP, one to the DLP and one was an Independent. The defeated members included two Ministers (Mr Tony Robinson and Ms Maxine Morand), the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly (Ms Jenny Lindell), a former President of the Legislative Council (Mr Bob Smith), the only DLP member (Mr Peter Kavanagh) and the only independent member (Mr Craig Ingram).

Twenty-seven new members were elected to replace the retiring and defeated members. The party affiliations of the new members were: ALP, seven; Liberal, 17; Nationals, three. Across both Houses, 21% of the members elected were new, compared with 29% at the 2006 State election.

Candidates and parties

A total of 711 candidates nominated in 2010 – a record number for a Victorian State election. The total was only slightly above the previous record of 707 candidates at the 2006 election, suggesting a return to stability after the major changes to the electoral system in 2006. However, the lack of movement in the total figure masked significant variations at a lower level, as shown in Figure 68.

An increase in the number of candidates for the Legislative Assembly was balanced by a decline in the number for the Legislative Council. In terms of political parties, three parties that endorsed candidates in 2006 were not present in 2010 (People Power and the Australian Democrats had been de-registered and the Citizens Electoral Council decided not to stand candidates), while there was one new party (the Australian Sex Party) in 2010. There were fewer candidates for the Liberal and National parties (as a result of the coalition agreement that reduced three-cornered contests) and for Family First, but the DLP and Country Alliance stood many more candidates than in 2006.

The number of candidates not endorsed by a registered political party increased substantially, despite a decline in the number standing for the Upper House. How-to-vote cards indicate that a few of these candidates belonged to unregistered political parties, including Peter Byrne (Socialist Equality Party, Broadmeadows), Stephen Jolly (Socialist Party, Richmond) and John Perkins (Secular Party, Melbourne), but for the sake of consistency the VEC has combined such candidates with the independents. Although the number of independent candidates and their Statewide vote was higher than in 2006, the only independent Member of Parliament (Craig Ingram, Gippsland East) was defeated.

The number of candidates per Legislative Assembly district ranged between three and ten, with five being the most common number (occurring in 26 Districts). The average number of candidates per district was 5.7, compared with 5.2 in 2006. The number of candidates per Legislative Council region ranged from 21 (Eastern Victoria) to 34 (Northern Metropolitan), with an average of 5.2 candidates for each of the 40 seats (a decline from 6.2 in 2006).

The number of women nominating as candidates was 223 (31.4% of the total) – a slight decrease from the 235 women candidates at the 2006 election. Female candidates were concentrated in the Legislative Council, where more than 40% of candidates were women. The number of women in Parliament increased from 37 (29% of all MPs) after the 2006 election to 42 (32.8%) after the 2010 election.

Two-party-preferred vote

Since 1985, the Victorian Electoral Commission (and its predecessor, the State Electoral Office) has prepared two-party-preferred vote statistics for each State election. The purpose of the two-party-preferred vote is to show, for each electorate and for the State as a whole, how the vote was divided between the ALP and the Liberal and National parties, taking into account the preferences of people who vote for other parties and independents.

The two-party-preferred vote was calculated in the following way:

- In 26 Districts, the result of the preference distribution constituted the two-party-preferred vote. These were Districts where the preference distribution continued until there were only two candidates left in the count, and those two candidates were ALP and Liberal/National.
- In 56 Districts, the two-candidate preferred (2CP) count constituted the two-party-preferred vote. These were Districts where the 2CP count was between an ALP and a Liberal/National candidate, and where either a preference distribution was not required because one candidate gained more than half of the first-preference votes (44 Districts were in this position), or a preference distribution concluded with more than two candidates still in the count (there were 12 such Districts).
- In six Districts, there were special two-party-preferred counts. In these Districts, neither the preference distribution nor the 2CP count were between the ALP and the Liberal or National parties – in Brunswick, Melbourne, Northcote and Richmond the final contest was between the ALP and the Greens, and in Gippsland East and Mildura it was between the Nationals and an independent. The special count revealed the balance between the ALP and the Coalition.

In Districts where both Liberal and National candidates were standing, the leading candidate of the two parties in that electorate was chosen as the Coalition candidate for the two-party-preferred vote. As a result of the Coalition agreement, there were only six such Districts in 2010. In four Districts (Bendigo East, Gembrook, Ripon and Seymour) the Liberal candidate was selected for the two-party-preferred vote, while in two Districts (Bendigo West and Gippsland East) the National candidate was selected.

It is worth noting that the two-party-preferred vote is obtained for information purposes only. It provides a measure – in each district and for the State as a whole – of support for the parties most likely to form government. The two-party-preferred vote does not affect the result of the election in any district. The result is determined according to law by the count of first-preference votes and by preference distributions where required until one candidate has a majority, regardless of the party affiliations of the candidates.

In most State elections there are several cases where the ALP or Liberal/National candidates are not the two leading candidates in an electorate. There were six such cases in the 1999 State election, 11 in 2002, nine in 2006, and seven in the 2010 State election (Brunswick, Melbourne, Northcote and Richmond Districts, where the Liberal candidate was third in terms of first-preference votes; Mildura and Shepparton, where the ALP candidate was third; and Gippsland East, where the ALP candidate came fourth. In each case, preferences were distributed to the ALP and the leading Liberal or National candidate, in order to maintain a consistent approach and establish a two-party-preferred vote. In the 2010 State election, the two-party-preferred vote was 48.42% ALP and 51.58% Liberal/National.

Enforcement of compulsory voting

After the conduct of elections, by-elections and polls in which voting is compulsory, the VEC carries out compulsory voting enforcement where legislated, and when a council contracts the VEC to do so.

Three stages of enforcement (or non-voter follow-up) are managed by the VEC.

1. Despatch of Apparent Failure to Vote Notices to those electors who appear not to have voted in an election.
2. Follow-up (by Infringement Notice) of electors who did not respond, or who provided an invalid response to the Apparent Failure to Vote Notice.
3. A Penalty Reminder Notice is sent to those who do not respond to the Infringement Notice. An amount for prescribed costs is added to the original penalty amount.

Roll scanning

For the 2010 State election, the first stage of the non-voter follow-up process commenced in mid-December. Elector information reports completed at voting centres on Election Day, detailing elector excuses for not voting and postal vote declarations received too late to be admitted to the count, were processed through the compulsory voting module of the Election Management System. These electors were marked as not able to vote on Election Day.

Scanning of the 7,997 marked rolls from Election Day voting centres commenced in mid-January 2011. This activity is a major component of the non-voter follow-up exercise, taking approximately four weeks to complete. The technology used for roll scanning allows for a two per cent tolerance when reading the marks on the roll against the number of marks detailed on the scannable roll cover completed by the issuing officer. The tolerance level is set to allow for possible errors, by the issuing officer at a voting centre, during the reconciliation of ballot papers. Where the tolerance level is exceeded, each scannable roll is manually reconciled by counting each mark on each page of the roll. This ensures that every elector who was marked on a roll as having voted at a voting centre is recorded in the VEC's Election Management System, and helps ensure that electors are not incorrectly issued with an 'Apparent Failure to Vote' notice.

Once scanning was complete, the VEC generated a file of 'possible' multiple voters. A total of 1,063 multiple records required further investigation and these voters were sent a letter seeking clarification of how and where they voted. This process is currently underway. It should be noted that the number of apparent multiple voters in any one electorate does not impact on the final result. In almost all cases, an administrative error has contributed to the elector being marked on the roll more than once.

Stage one — Apparent Failure to Vote notices

Apparent Failure to Vote notices were generated in early-April and mailed to electors over the following two weeks. The first stage of the non-voter follow-up process is conducted under Part 9, Division 2 of the Electoral Act 2002. Subsequent follow-up of electors who do not respond to, or who provide an invalid response is conducted under the Infringements Act 2006.

Further stages

Non-voters may receive two further notices from the VEC. The first is an Infringement Notice. This stage incurs a penalty amount and is due for completion by late July 2011. The third stage of the non-voter follow-up process will be the mailing of Penalty Reminder Notices to all outstanding non-voters. The anticipated completion date of the Penalty Reminder Notice stage is mid-September 2011. Further follow-up of all remaining non-voters may be instigated in the Infringements Court.

Stage one - Apparent Failure to Vote notices

Apparent Failure to Vote notices were generated in early-April and mailed to electors over the following two weeks. The first stage of the non-voter follow-up process is conducted under Part 9, Division 2 of the Electoral Act 2002. Subsequent follow-up of electors who do not respond, or who provide an invalid response, is conducted under the Infringements Act 2006.

The VEC posted 179,646 Apparent Failure to Vote notices to electors. The deadline for response was 23 May 2011.

Stage two – Infringement notices

A total of 113,375 Infringement notices were generated in early June and mailed to those electors who did not respond, or who provided an invalid response to the Apparent Failure to Vote notice. A penalty amount was applied (set at $60 for the 2010-11 financial year). Non-voters have 42 days to respond to the Infringement notice by paying the penalty or providing supporting documentation as to why they did not vote. The Infringement stage is due for completion by the end of July 2011.

Further stages

The third stage of the non-voter follow-up process will be the mailing of Penalty Reminder Notices to all outstanding non-voters. An amount for prescribed costs is added to the original penalty amount. The anticipated completion date of the Penalty Reminder Notice stage is mid-September 2011. Further follow-up of all remaining non-voters will be instigated in the Infringements Court commencing mid-October, and reported in future Annual Reports.

Complaints

Complaints

The VEC received 167 written complaints relating to the 2010 State election between October 2010 and April 2011. Many of these complaints related to issues beyond the VEC's control such as fundraising at voting centre venues, candidates' campaign material being distributed or displayed on public and private property or the weather on Election Day.

A significant number of correspondents registered complaints related to a misunderstanding of the electoral process, or to the content of candidates' campaign material. These generally related to legislated processes or definitions and were resolved by explanation or the provision of information. The VEC will consider ways of including relevant explanations and information in its communication and electoral education materials.

The VEC aimed to respond to complainants within one business day of receiving the complaint and in the majority of cases this was achieved. In some cases where a complaint required investigation or follow up with third parties, the complainant was notified of the receipt of the complaint as soon as possible and a response was sent.

A small number of correspondents sent multiple and ongoing correspondence to the VEC relating to the same or similar issues, requesting clarification or expressing dissatisfaction with responses to the original complaint.

Complaints about services to voters

The VEC received 103 written complaints about its services to voters. This is an increase on the number received in this category in 2006. However, as noted above, a large proportion of these complaints involved enquiries or the elector seeking assistance. Although registered as complaints, these were resolved by the provision of further information or clarification of terminology.

Early voting centres

Sixteen complaints were received in relation to early voting centres, including difficulty locating particular centres, the lack of an early voting centre in a particular area, the hours and suitability of the location.

Voting centres

Five complaints were received in relation to the accessibility of voting centres. One of these was lodged through the Victorian Equal Opportunity and Humans Rights Commission and one through the Australian Equal Opportunity and Humans Rights Commission. Both of these complaints were resolved to the satisfaction of the complainants.

As previously reported, finding accessible venues for voting centres is extremely difficult, and the VEC makes every effort to make voting accessible to all electors. The VEC strives to find solutions to the lack of accessible voting centre venues and has been able to negotiate outcomes that are satisfactory to all parties in both cases, and may assist with this aim.

Twenty-eight complaints were received in relation to processes at voting centres. This included complaints about delays (6), and the appropriateness of certain locations as voting centres including access considerations. All complaints were investigated.

Election officials

Twelve complaints were received in relation to staff attitude or conduct. All complaints were investigated, and rectified if necessary. One person had an offer of employment incorrectly withdrawn and was offered, and took up, alternative employment with the VEC. Another official was provided with additional training to ensure correct procedures were followed.

Information and advertising campaign

Three complaints were received about the EasyVote Guide, which was mailed to every elector. These complaints related to the content and the issuing date.

Overseas voting

Two complaints were received from electors situated overseas at the time of the election, one in relation to not being able to register as a general postal voter. The other complaint related to the VEC not providing a voting venue in a specific country.

Other complaints

Other complaints received related to the fold on the Legislative Council ballot paper (6), fund-raising activities at voting centre locations (2) and the distribution, authorisation, format and lack of how-to-vote-cards (7).

Complaints about candidates or political parties

Twenty complaints received were about political parties and a further eighteen about candidates. Four of these formal complaints related to the distribution of postal voting applications by political parties.

Under the Electoral Act 2002 (s.101), organisations and individuals other than the VEC are able to reproduce postal voting application forms and include them with campaign materials. The complaints primarily related to the legislative authority for parties to distribute postal vote applications, and the use of electors' details for this purpose.

The VEC will put forward for noting the subject of the distribution of postal vote applications by parties.

One of the complaints concerned the distribution of postal voting application forms prior to the issue of the writ. Under the Act, a postal vote application received prior to the issue of the writ cannot be processed, and the VEC must send another application to the elector. This causes the elector confusion and frustration. To alleviate this in 2010, the VEC requested that parties waited until after the issue of the writ to distribute postal voting applications, if they were planning to do so. One party did not fully comply with this request, thus affecting a small number of locations, and causing concern among other parties.

The majority of the remaining complaints regarding political parties or candidates related to candidates failing to authorise or incorrectly authorising electoral material, or alleging that electoral material was deceptive or misleading. A further eleven complaints related to material distributed by private citizens in support of particular candidates or parties. These complaints related to lack of authorisation (8) and misleading or deceptive election material (3).

Where a complaint regarding the authorisation of material founded, the relevant candidate or party was asked to appropriately amend the material and undertake to observe correct authorisation procedures in future.

Other complaints related to electoral material located on public property or distributed on private property, and the manner of campaigning at public places such as railway stations and voting centres.

Complaints about the media

The VEC received two complaints about the media. One related to overall coverage, the other to the labelling of electoral advertising. A further complaint was received in relation to the airing of electoral advertising during the 'blackout period'. This is not covered by electoral legislation and the complainant was referred to the appropriate authority.

Publication of Electoral Advertisements online

Sections 83 and 84 of the Electoral Act 2002 (the Act) relate to publication of electoral advertisements and misleading or deceptive matter. The Act provides that 'publish' includes publication on the internet, but there are practical limits on the VEC's ability to enforce these provisions in the online environment.

The VEC received a complaint during the election regarding unauthorised electoral advertising published as Google Adwords. The AdWords purported to be advertisements for the Greens and contained a link to the Greens' website (vic.greens.org.au). The advertisements were short-lived, and had ceased to run before Google Australia Pty Ltd had received any complaint about them. Subsequently, the VEC sought the assistance of Google Australia to provide information regarding those responsible for the placement of the advertisements.

After investigation, Google Australia advised that although it held the information requested in accordance with 'commercial confidentiality practices', since Google Adwords was not conducted by Google Australia, the VEC should direct its request to Google Inc., of California, through an email to its Legal Investigations Support Team. This process appears largely automated. The Victorian Government Solicitor's Office (VGSO), acting for the VEC, received a response advising that 'valid legal process' was required for Google Inc. to make such disclosure, and indicating that it may accept 'an order signed by a judge or magistrate' served by registered mail.

The VEC was not in a position, under the legislation as it currently stands, to obtain an order in this form.

The VEC will therefore refer the matter for consideration by the Parliament to consider legislative amendment empowering the VEC to require that certain information be provided in relation to the publication of electoral material. A recommendation in relation to this matter is included in the concluding section of this report.

Independent evaluation

Independent evaluation

Independent evaluation

The Victorian Electoral Commission (VEC) engaged Colmar Brunton Social Research (CBSR) by tender to conduct research to evaluate the services at the 2010 Victorian State election. The research aimed to measure the effectiveness of voting services for a number of specific populations:

- Voters who are casting their vote inside and outside of their electorate
- People who needed to cast their vote in a language other than English
- Voters with a vision impairment
- Voters casting their vote from overseas (namely, the United Kingdom)
- Voters who were not on the electoral roll on Election Day
- Candidates who were standing for government
- Electoral Officials

The quality of services on Election Day such as the helpfulness of staff and effectiveness of signage was assessed, as well as services leading up to Election Day such as information campaigns, the VEC Hotline and the VEC website.

A full report of the research is available on the VEC website.

Satisfaction with voter services

Satisfaction with voter services was high amongst the great majority of voters at the 2010 Victorian State election. Election officials were praised for their helpfulness and assistance, and the layout and organisation of voting centres was also well perceived. These high ratings were given by voters using the range of different methods to vote, including on-the-day, postal and early voting.

In aggregate across all voter types (ordinary, absent, early and postal), over nine in ten voters (91%) were satisfied or very satisfied with the VEC's services. Only 3% expressed dissatisfaction. These proportions are slightly higher than the overall satisfaction figures from 2006 of 88% satisfied, 5% dissatisfied (significantly greater at the 90% confidence level, though not at the 95% confidence level).

The one area that stood out as showing room for improvement on the day of the election was signage outside of voting centres, which generally received lower ratings than all other aspects of services and resources.

While still positive on the whole, voters typically gave less favourable ratings to information provided in the lead up to the election, compared with services and information on the day. In particular, voters called for a greater volume of advertising and information, specifically about where to vote, or when to vote for early voters.

Despite promotion of the VEC website for the 2010 election, recall and use of the website has not increased since 2006. While awareness of the website was relatively high for most voters, actual use of the website was low, in some cases lower than in 2006. This may be the result of the extra information and voting centre locations being included in the EasyVote Guide sent to all electors.

Opportunities also exist to improve information provided to people who wish to vote early. These voters gave substantially lower ratings to the quality of information compared with voters who voted on Election Day.

Satisfaction with services to candidates

Candidates were typically quite positive about services provided by the VEC.

- All candidates were either extremely satisfied (73%) or satisfied (27%) with the managers in relation to arranging their nomination to stand within the electorate.
- Likewise, all candidates (independents) were either extremely satisfied (55%) or satisfied (45%) in terms of processing how-to-vote cards for registration.
- Almost all candidates (97%) were either extremely satisfied (72%) or satisfied (25%) with how impartially the manager acted.
- Nine out of ten (91%) candidates were either extremely satisfied (56%) or satisfied (35%) with the manager's response to their enquiries.
- Nine out of ten (90%) candidates were either extremely satisfied (64%) or satisfied (26%) with how the manager conducted the computerised draw for ballot paper positions.
- More than eight out of ten (86%) candidates were either extremely satisfied (46%) or satisfied (40%) that the information provided about election arrangements was accurate.
- Eight out of ten (80%) candidates were either extremely satisfied (38%) or satisfied (42%) with the arrangement of early votes.
- Eight out of ten (78%) candidates were either extremely satisfied (32%) or satisfied (46%) with the overall arrangements at voting centres on Election Day.

There were no significant differences between the ratings given by successful and unsuccessful candidates for the rating of the Election Manager, or for any other of the service rating or satisfaction measures.

Those candidates who expressed some dissatisfaction tended to relate the dissatisfaction not to the Election Manager so much as issues such as the centre facilities. For example, of those expressing dissatisfaction, the following issues arose: inconvenient voting centre locations (67%); a lack of contact form the VEC (50%); no shelter from the weather (33%); disorganised facilities (33%); lack of parking (33%); no access to public transport (33%); and that they felt uncomfortable with people handing out how-to-vote cards.

Six out of ten candidates (64%) received a copy of the Candidate's Information Kit. Of those who received the Kit, 82% indicated that it was either extremely effective (30%) or effective (52%). Only three candidates rated the Kit extremely ineffective or ineffective due to the information being outdated/generic, the how to vote cards not being useful, poor instructions, they were already well informed, and that the information should be in a summary format for a quick guide.

Almost nine out of ten (89%) of candidates recalled seeing or hearing some form of communication from the VEC. Most commonly noticed were newspapers (81%), television (52%) and the EasyVote Guide (52%). Of the candidates who recalled the information, eight out of ten (78%) perceived the information they received to be either extremely effective (18%) or effective (60%).

Candidates rated their satisfaction across a range of VEC services:

- Postal voting services 73% (26% extremely satisfied, 47% satisfied)
- Early voting centres 78% (35%, 43%)
- Mobile voting services 65% (24%, 41%)
- Operation of voting centres 83% (26%, 57%)
- Suitability of voting centres 82% (39%, 43%)
- Vote counting process 69% (31%, 38%)
- VEC website 70% (38%, 32%)
- VEC election hotline 67% (21%, 46%)
- VEC communications 93% (30%, 63%)

Half (54%) of the candidates surveyed believed there is a need to improve services to voters with a disability. Two in ten (23%) did not see there was a need, and two in ten (23%) did not know if there was a need.

Candidates that believed there is a need to improve services to voters with a disability consistently indicated the following suggestions for improvement:

- Provide disability access at voting centres (29%)
- Provide the ability for voters with a disability to vote at home (16%)
- Improve the location of voting centres (16%)

Satisfaction with services to political parties

All interviewed representatives from political parties perceived very high levels of quality of VEC services during the 2010 State election. Services provided were seen to not only meet the needs of political parties and voters, but to go well beyond the baseline standard required.

Overall, key themes emerging from the interviews were:

- Solid performance
- Above and beyond — VEC gets more than just a pass-mark
- Excellent: responsive, timely and accurate

Representatives from five political parties took part in a semi-structured interview regarding their satisfaction with services provided by the Victorian Electoral Commission. The parties involved were:

- The Australian Labor Party (Victorian Division)
- The Liberal Party of Australia (Victorian Division)
- The Australian Greens (Victoria)
- Australian Sex Party (Victoria
- Country Alliance

All political party representatives perceived very high levels of quality of services provided by the VEC in managing the 2010 State election. Services provided were seen to not only meet the needs of political parties and voters, but to go well beyond the baseline standard required. It was also noted that the services provided by the VEC are uniformly high election to election, and that services at the 2010 election continued a long-standing tradition of high quality.

Some other findings included:

- The enrolment and nomination process was perceived to be relatively seamless, though complex and involved, particularly for large political parties with many candidates. The USB software keys provided for nominations were seen to be particularly innovative and an effective strategy to expedite the process.
- The generation of the how-to-vote cards caused some confusion and frustration for some representatives, especially for those from larger parties with many candidates who described the process as a 'bureaucratic nightmare'. However, despite some technical and timing issues, the how-to-vote card system was perceived to have 'worked in the end'. The major issue identified by all representatives was the timing and availability of the finalised cards.
- Those representatives who attended early voting centres described them as 'generally sensible and well run'. Many representatives were curious about the unusually high number of early votes. This was not seen as an issue in 2010 in terms of capacity or quality of services. However, one representative described this trend as requiring "...a shift from the notion of 'Election Day' to a 'ballot period'... parties and VEC need to think about how to accommodate this change".
- The majority of representatives indicated that they were not able to have a presence at mobile voting centres, but commented on the timing of mobile voting services in relation to the availability of how-to-vote cards.
- In general, representatives felt that the "VEC kept on top of the process" in relation to the postal voting process. However one representative perceived that the procedures for postal voting were inflexible and that some VEC staff demonstrated a lack of knowledge about the process leading to some confusion.
- VEC services on election day were perceived to be "well prepared and organised". All representatives praised the responsiveness and availability of VEC staff on the day of the election and the way in which VEC staff responded promptly and effectively to all enquiries and issues raised.
- The issue of shelter or rather the lack of it at many voting centres was raised as an ongoing issue from party perspectives. Two representatives suggested that the lack of shelter, coupled with the weather, could have had a negative impact on voter turnout.
- The communications provided by the VEC to political parties were perceived to be of high quality, clear and provided when needed. The responsiveness of VEC staff to issues, and queries, no matter how minor, was particularly well received. The impartial and decisive nature of advice and information given was also recognised. Further, representatives were impressed by the balance and quality of information provided to voters.
- Representatives perceived that the VEC "did the best job they could" in providing results to parties. It was acknowledged that the results process was always (and unavoidably) frustrating. Particular praise was given to the swiftness with which individual results were available and the accessibility of results to political parties on the night.
- The majority of representatives did not attend the tally room on election night, preferring to stay at their own parties' headquarters or another event. The one representative that did attend the tally room was very positive about the experience, but questioned the relevance of the tally room in years to come. Another representative echoed this sentiment, suggesting that the tally room represented unnecessary expenditure on the part of the VEC, which should be reduced in future elections.

Satisfaction with services to election officials

Almost all officials surveyed (98%) reported receiving a manual from the VEC to help them prepare for their role. Of those that received a manual, nine out of ten (92%) were either extremely satisfied (44%) or satisfied (48%) that the manual helped them prepare for their role.

Eight out of ten (84%) officials surveyed completed online training before Election Day. Of those that completed the online training, eight out of ten (79%) felt the training was either extremely effective (31%) or effective (48%) in helping them prepare for their role.

Nine out of ten (91%) officials received a training DVD from the VEC. Of those that received the DVD, eight out of ten (82%) used the DVD to help them prepare for their role; two out of ten (18%) did not use the DVD.

Of those officials that gave high ratings for the support they received from Voting Centre Managers and Election Liaison Officers and voting centres, half (48%) felt that everything went well. Two in ten (20%) felt the Voting Centre Managers, Election Liaison Officers and voting centres were well prepared, approachable and professional. Other reasons included the staff were well informed, supportive and worked together (13%), it was a good atmosphere (7%), the staff managed issues well (4%), and there was special support for those who needed it (4%).

Of those officials that gave low ratings for the support they received from Voting Centre Managers, Election Liaison Officers and voting centres, two in ten (7%) felt the venue was overcrowded, too small, unsuitable, disorganised (7%). Other reasons included weather issues (6%), poor organisation and planning (5%), problems with equipment (5%) and not enough palm pilots (2%).

Of those that attended a face to face training session, nine out of ten (91%) felt that the training was either extremely effective (32%) or effective (59%) in preparing them for their role.

Response to evaluation

The VEC is generally satisfied with the findings of the research, and believes that it provided excellent electoral services to all stakeholder groups. A small proportion of the figures is not statistically significant due to the number of respondents, and may need additional follow-up to assist with future election planning.

The VEC will further analyse the results of the formal research in conjunction with internal evaluation, staff debriefing, complaints and any subsequent parliamentary recommendations. Findings will assist the VEC when planning the delivery of future election services.

Section 15
Conclusion

Conclusion

Conclusion

To assist with the Committee's inquiry, the VEC provides the following information on the impact of new and changing technology, community expectation and current electoral legislation. Included are matters for noting, and a number of recommendations for consideration by the Parliament.

Matters for noting

The VEC puts forward the following matters for Parliament to note.

Party involvement in postal voting

The VEC continues to be concerned about party involvement in the distribution of postal vote applications. Section 101 of the Electoral Act 2002 (the Act) allows for other individuals or groups besides the Electoral Commission to distribute postal votes. This causes elector confusion regarding the source of postal vote applications, as electors assume that any postal vote applications available at State elections are provided by the VEC. Four formal complaints related to the distribution of postal voting applications by political parties were received during the 2010 State election, along with a number of telephone calls and emails relating to the issue.

Note 1: The VEC requests that the Committee notes that this issue continues to raise concerns among electors.

How-to-vote card registration

At the 2010 State election the VEC was required to publish all registered how-to-vote cards on the VEC's website. A total of 1,101 how-to-vote cards were registered at the election.

A number of parties and candidates registered more than one how-to-vote card at the election with the intention of selecting one of these cards for distribution on Election Day. It is therefore possible that cards not intended for distribution, could be downloaded and distributed by a third party without authority.

Note 2: The VEC requests that the Committee notes the issues relating to the publication of registered how-to-vote cards.

General postal voters

Section 24 of the Act describes the criteria and the process for a person to apply to be registered as a General Postal Voter (GPV) for State elections.

GPVs have their ballot material sent to them automatically at the time of a State election, without having to make further application.

When processing returned postal vote declarations, the Election Manager compares the signature of the elector on each returned postal vote declaration with the signature of the same elector on the postal vote application.

All declarations have an accompanying application except those from GPVs. It should be noted that VEC Election Managers check that declarations from GPVs have been signed, but the signature is not checked against any reference documentation. The VEC accepts postal vote declarations from GPVs that are signed and witnessed.

Note 3: The VEC requests that the Committee notes the process put in place by the VEC for the scrutiny of GPVs.

Terminology — unsound mind

The Constitution Act 1975 outlines the qualifications for being on the electoral roll. Section 48 (2) (d) provides that 'by reason of being of unsound mind, [a person who] is incapable of understanding the nature and significance of enrolment and voting', is not entitled to be on the roll of electors.

Dissatisfaction with the use of the term 'unsound mind' is often expressed to the VEC by members of the public and by disability groups.

Note 4: The VEC requests that the Committee note the VEC's ongoing concern about the inclusion of the term 'unsound mind'.

Electronic voting franchise at local government elections

The VEC is currently unable to provide electronic voting at local government elections due to legislative constraints (i.e. currently, the Local Government Act 1989 and the City of Melbourne Act 2001 do not have provisions for electronic voting). The VEC considers, however, that voting electronically would provide the same benefits to electors at this level of government as it does to electors at State level. Moreover, the VEC considers that there are some valuable opportunities to trial electronic voting in other ways at local government elections.

One possibility would be to trial electronic voting for people with poor English-language skills at an attendance election in a municipality with a high proportion of culturally and linguistically diverse voters. Data from previous elections show that these municipalities, Brimbank and Moreland City Councils for example, tend to have very high informality rates. Municipalities with large numbers of candidates tend to also have higher rates of informality. A trial of this nature would allow the VEC to assess the effectiveness of electronic voting as a solution to this problem.

A second possibility would be to conduct all voting electronically in one particular municipality and then calculate the results by importing the data into the VEC's counting software, rather than printing the votes. As mentioned above, this could provide cost advantages, faster results and a reduction in possible errors.

To make either scenario more affordable through reducing the amount of infrastructure required, the VEC recommends allowing electronic voting for two weeks prior to Election Day, rather than on Election Day. The VEC notes that this parallels postal voting, where voters have an extended time to fill in their ballot papers in most local government elections.

Note 5: The VEC requests that the Committee note its support of broadening the operation of electronic voting to include local government elections.

Recommendations

The VEC raises the following issues and includes, as part of this report, twelve recommendations for consideration by the Parliament.

Close of roll seven days after issue of the writ

After the 2002 State election, the close of roll was moved from three days after the issue of the writ to seven days after the issue of the writ. The extension of the close of roll date introduced practical problems for the VEC as it reduced the time available to produce roll products in time for early voting, nomination checking and for candidates for campaigning purposes.

The VEC believes that with a fixed date election, there is sufficient opportunity for electors to update their details before the close of roll. Additionally, the introduction of enrolment on the day enables those electors who miss the close of roll deadline to enrol and vote during the election. Amending the close of roll to take place three days after the issue of the writ would assist the VEC with ensuring all roll products are completed by the commencement of early voting and the processing of nominations.

Recommendation 1. The VEC recommends that consideration be given to amending the legislation so that the close of roll occurs three days after the issue of the writ.

Postal voting

Signing and witnessing of postal vote applications

Sections 101–103 and 106 of the Electoral Act 2002 describe the process by which an elector may apply to vote by post during a State election. An application to vote by post must be in the prescribed form (Form K, Electoral Regulations 2002) and must be signed by the elector and a witness. Applications that are not signed and/or witnessed are rejected. At the 2010 State election, 3,285 postal vote applications were rejected as defective because they were not signed and/or witnessed.

For the March 2011 New South Wales state election, under new legislation, the New South Wales Electoral Commission introduced on-line postal vote applications. Electors completing an on-line postal vote application were not required to sign the application or have it witnessed. Additional verification processes were implemented to ensure that the elector applying for the postal vote was eligible to do so and was the person named on the roll and the application.

Recommendation 2. The VEC recommends that consideration be given to extending legislation to allow for a more simplified method for electors to apply for a postal vote at state elections.

Witnessing of postal vote declarations

Sections 104-106 of the Electoral Act 2002 describe the process for issuing a postal vote declaration and ballot paper and include directions on how a postal voter should complete the postal voting material.

The postal vote declaration returned by the postal voter must also be completed in the presence of an authorised witness and the authorised witness must sign and add their title or capacity of witness, either an elector (their name is on the roll), or an election official, to the postal vote declaration.

Many witnesses found the completion of this section of the application confusing. A large number of electors wrote 'Mr' or 'wife' etc., as opposed to 'elector'.

The Election Manager checks the elector's signature on the returned postal vote declaration against the signature on the original application. Declarations are rejected where the signatures do not match.

The Election Manager is also required to reject returned declarations that are not witnessed even though they are signed by the elector.

Recommendation 3. The VEC recommends that consideration be given to removing the requirement for postal vote declarations to be witnessed where the signature on an application has already been verified by a witness.

Commencement of early voting

The VEC continues to be concerned about the commencement of the early voting period, and has previously raised this matter for consideration by the Parliament. Section 99 (1) (a) of the Electoral Act 2002 directs that early voting is to commence at 4.00pm on the final nomination day. This allows the VEC only four hours to conduct the ballot draw, and to print and distribute ballot papers to voting centres for the commencement of early voting.

The practical difficulties of issuing ballot papers on the same day as the ballot draw arose again at the 2010 State election. This is especially so for the Upper House, as electors who vote on that day are restricted to voting below-the-line. Group voting ticket lodgement did not close until midday on Sunday, 14 November, two days after the commencement of early voting.

Recommendation 4. The VEC recommends that the Act be amended so that early voting commences on the Monday after nominations close to provide additional time for the VEC to produce and distribute ballot papers and permit electors to vote above-the-line if they so choose.

Clarification of terminology - bribery

Section 151 (2) of the Act states: 'A person must not, in order to influence or affect any person's election conduct, give or confer, or promise or offer to give or confer, any property or benefit of any kind to the person or any other person'.

Recommendation 5. The VEC recommends that the Parliament specifies a dollar amount, or classification of gift that would constitute bribery.

Misleading or deceptive electoral material

Section 84 (2) of the Act refers to the contents of electoral advertisements, handbills, pamphlets or notices printed, published or distributed during an election. The VEC believes that the current provisions are not sufficiently specific and could lead to material that was misleading being distributed to electors and thereby inducing an elector to complete their ballot paper in way other than directed on the ballot paper.

The current legislation states:

'A person must not during the relevant period –

(a) print, publish or distribute; or

(b) cause permit or authorise to be printed, published or distributed — an electoral advertisement, handbill, pamphlet or notice that contains a representation or purported representation of a ballot paper for use in that election that is likely to induce an elector to mark the elector's vote otherwise than in accordance with the directions on the ballot paper.

Recommendation 6. The VEC recommends that consideration be given to amending the legislation as follows:

(b) cause permit or authorise to be printed, published or distributed – an electoral advertisement, handbill, pamphlet or notice that contains a statement that is likely to induce an elector to mark the elector's vote otherwise than in accordance with the directions on the ballot paper, regardless of whether it contains a representation or purported representation of a ballot paper for use in that election.

Publication of Electoral Advertisements online

Internet service providers and the proprietors of social networking sites or other online services, such as AdWords, are unlikely to have knowledge of the content of electoral advertisements or other electoral matter, and may not be primarily liable for any relevant breach of the Electoral Act. Further, the global nature of such businesses may mean that it is not possible for VEC to readily obtain information concerning the individual or organisation which placed the advertisement. Some of those providers may readily take down material which is the subject of a complaint. However, without information identifying the person or organisation that posted the material online, VEC may be unable to take the matter further.

Section 83 of the Electoral Act already prohibits publication of an electoral advertisement unless the name and address of the person authorising it appears at its end.

Recommendation 7. The VEC recommends that consideration be given to providing the VEC with the power to require information to be provided to it concerning the name and address and any other identifying detail of any person publishing electoral advertisements or electoral matter online.

Electronically assisted voting at State elections

Section 110D of the Act enables access to electronic voting at an electronic voting centre by an elector who otherwise cannot vote without assistance because of:

- low vision;
- a motor impairment; or
- insufficient literacy skills (whether in the English language or in their primary spoken language).

Section 100 (2) enables electors voting interstate or overseas to vote using such means of electronic voting as is provided at the early voting centre.

At the 2010 State election, stand-alone electronic kiosks and telephone voting options were provided at 101 early voting centres within Victoria. Electronic kiosks were also provided at three locations in the United Kingdom, with telephone voting available at the offices of State and Territory Electoral Commissions outside Victoria.

The highest percentage of electors voting electronically was in the United Kingdom, with over 700 votes cast electronically. Additionally, the VEC provided an emailed ballot material service at the State election for electors who were travelling interstate or overseas in remote locations and did not have a fixed postal address or would experience difficulty in accessing mail services. A total of 1,212 electors requested emailed ballot material at the 2010 State election.

While the VEC is able to roll out and support the infrastructure required for electronic voting at an early voting centre, there is a very low take up rate within Victoria by electors detailed in Section 110D of the Act. This could be attributed in part to the fact they must attend an early voting centre to vote electronically.

Providing the opportunity for electors who are eligible to vote electronically, to access a secure voting facility from home, or a location of their choice, is likely to increase participation by this group. The VEC would continue to provide electronically assisted voting facilities at early voting centres for eligible electors who do not have alternative access to computer facilities.

At the March 2011 New South Wales State election, the New South Wales Electoral Commission implemented Technology Assisted Voting (iVote). The application provided electors, who would otherwise have had difficulty either attending a voting centre or casting an independent and secret ballot, to do so via the internet. Voters registered to use the iVote system and were provided with passwords that allowed them access to their district and Upper House ballot papers.

Recommendation 8. The VEC recommends that consideration be given to amending the Act to enable the VEC to issue votes electronically from locations in addition to appointed voting centres to those electors currently covered under s110D of the Act.

Procedure for ascertaining number of votes for Upper House candidates

The VEC is aware of different interpretations that have been placed on S.114A (28)(c) of the Act, which defines what constitutes a separate transfer when distributing preferences for Upper House candidates. The matter was raised in a submission to the inquiry into the conduct of the 2006 State election.

The VEC has obtained legal advice on the interpretation of this section. This advice confirms that the construction that the VEC has placed on s114A is preferred.

Recommendation 9. The VEC recommends that, to avoid confusion, the Parliament amends S.114A (28) (c) of the Act to be consistent with the wording in the Commonwealth Electoral Act 1918 and the Local Government Act 1989 as follows:

"a transfer in accordance with subsection (12)(b) of all the votes of an excluded candidate that were transferred to that candidate from a particular candidate or candidates as the case may be, at a particular transfer value."

District by-elections

Under the Act, a writ for a by-election must be issued by the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly within one month of the vacancy occurring (s61 (2)). The maximum period in which to conduct a by-election is 58 days from the Issue of the writ (S.63 (8) & S.63 (10)). Accordingly, the maximum period for conducting a by-election is approximately 3 months from the date the vacancy occurs.

Recommendation 10. The VEC recommends that the Parliament considers amending the Act so that if the writ for a by-election is due to be issued within 58 days of the date of a general election, the option not to conduct the by-election should be considered and the general election used to fill the vacancy.

Automatic enrolment

Section 23A of the Act allows for enrolment by the Commission. The section applies to persons who would be entitled to be enrolled on the register of electors but have not made a claim for enrolment within 21 days of becoming eligible. The Commission may on its own initiative, having regard to information obtained under Section 26(4), send a notice to such a person, informing them that it proposes to enrol them in respect of their principal place of residence. The person has 14 days to advise the Commission if they are not entitled to be enrolled on the register of electors.

Section 20 of the Act allows for an arrangement between the Commonwealth and the State for a joint enrolment process. The Australian Electoral Commission (AEC) and the VEC exchange information as part of that arrangement necessary for the preparation, maintenance and revision of the register of electors and the rolls.

There are a number of data sources available under the joint rolls arrangement suitable for automatically enrolling electors. For example, the AEC periodically conduct background reviews of the electoral roll to indentify where electors may not be correctly enrolled. It compares enrolment information against two other data sources, such as motor registry data (obtained from the National Exchange of Vehicle and Driver Information System (NEVDIS)) and Centrelink. Where the two external data sources have the same address for an elector but that elector is enrolled for a different address, the data could be used to automatically enrol the elector for their current address.

Under the current automatic enrolment provisions, the VEC cannot use data from the AEC for automatic enrolment purposes as the AEC is not an organization referred to under Section 26(4) of the Act.

Recommendation 11. The VEC recommends that the Act be amended to allow data obtained by the Commission under Section 20 of the Act as part of the joint enrolment process to be used for automatic enrolment purposes.

Enforcement of compulsory enrolment

The Victorian Electoral Commission (VEC) has traditionally taken the position of encouraging eligible electors to enrol and maintain their enrolment. This encouragement has been to protect an elector's right to vote should an election (local, State or federal) be called. Although changes to legislation were made in 2010 enabling electors to cast on-the-day enrolment provisional votes at a State election, electors not on the electoral roll at the 'close of roll' for federal and local government elections are ineligible to vote at that election.

To be eligible to enrol under the Act an elector must be 18 years of age, an Australian citizen or a qualified British subject, and have been living at a principal place of residence for at least a month.

The vast majority of enrolment amendments the VEC receives are those relating to a change of address. Each time an eligible elector moves home, they are required to update their enrolment within 21 days of the end of their first month of residence. Most electors are aware that voting is compulsory, but enrolment update is low on the list of priorities at moving time compared to having the utilities connected and their mail redirected. Most think they must update their enrolment, but given that there's no election on the immediate horizon, there's no urgency and then they forget. At the 2010 State election, 34,546 electors attended a voting centre erroneously believing they were registered on the roll. These electors cast an 'on-the-day enrolment provisional vote'.

At any one time, there may be up to 180,000 electors whose details are out of date, and a further 250,000 eligible electors not enrolled. Immediately prior to an election, this figure decreases due to the advertising and publicity conducted to remind people to update their enrolment. In the last seven days prior to the close of rolls for the 2010 State election, around 25,400 people updated their enrolment details. A further 12,800 electors either enrolled for the first time or re-enrolled because they had been removed from the roll for an address for which they were no longer entitled to be enrolled.

To ensure the integrity of the register of electors, the VEC conducts an ongoing Continuous Roll Update (CRU) program, in conjunction with the Australian Electoral Commission (AEC). Information is received from a variety of sources including VicRoads, the Rental Tenancies Bond Authority, the Victorian Curriculum and Assessment Authority, Births, Deaths and Marriages and the Victorian Tertiary Admissions Centre. Using this data, the VEC sends enrolment forms to those electors who are eligible to enrol, or who have moved and not updated their enrolment. If no response is received, a reminder letter is sent. The average response rate to this program over the past five years is 23.5% with a downward trend.

With the introduction of automatic enrolment, the situation will improve, as the VEC will no longer need to send enrolment forms to those it can confirm are eligible to be enrolled. However, the VEC will send correspondence to people who are potentially eligible to enrol, where eligibility cannot be confirmed.

In 2009, because of the declining rate of response to the CRU program and the concern at both a State and Federal Parliament level regarding declining enrolment, and the consequent implications for the integrity of the register of electors, the VEC conducted a trial program. This trial targeted a group of electors who had not responded to a CRU mail out but were still on the register of electors for what appeared to be their old address. These electors were sent a follow-up letter to their new address to remind them they needed to re-enrol every time they moved and if they didn't re-enrol, they risked being fined and may not be able to vote. The electors were also informed that if they had moved and the address they were still enrolled for was no longer their principal place of residence, the VEC was required to remove them from the register of electors in respect of that address. A pre-filled enrolment form was included and the electors were requested to check the details, sign the form and return it to the VEC. Only 20% of the 812 electors responded.

Electors who did not respond were sent a second follow-up letter informing them that they were to be removed from the register of electors on the grounds that the address they were enrolled for was not their principal place of residence. The electors were given 20 days to respond. The letter also informed the electors that if they had moved and not re-enrolled at the end of that period the VEC would commence legal action to enforce the compulsory enrolment provisions of the law. Letters were forwarded to both the enrolled address and the new address, and 45% of the electors responded to this mail-out.

The details of electors who had not responded to the second follow-up letter were removed from the roll in accordance with the provisions with the Electoral Act 2002.

The VEC engaged the Victorian Government Solicitors Office (VGSO) to commence prosecution of the 213 remaining electors who had not responded. The VGSO sent letters to theses electors with a pre-completed enrolment form, providing them with yet another opportunity to enrol. Recipients were given 14 days to respond, with the alternative being the commencement of prosecution. A total of 105 electors (55% less those returned as undeliverable) enrolled at this point.

The VGSO organised for summonses to be personally served on the outstanding 86 electors. The summons informed electors that if they lodged enrolment forms prior to the date of the court hearing, the matter would be withdrawn. Over half (45) of the summonses could not be served personally and no further action was taken in relation to these. Of the remainder, 87% completed enrolment forms and had the matter withdrawn.

Of the 12 cases outstanding, one requested to go straight to trial and the other 11 did not present for the court hearing, so ex parte hearings were requested and granted.

Summonses were prepared by the VGSO and served on the remaining electors. By the day of the trial, four electors had enrolled and another completed the enrolment form on the steps of the court (all these cases were withdrawn). A further two cases were withdrawn as a result of an abnormality in the process. The elector who chose to go to trial did not present in court, nor did the other four electors summonsed for ex parte hearings. All five were fined without conviction and charged statutory costs.

Over 99% of the original target group that were able to be contacted, enrolled. Based on the result of the trial the VEC sees merit in taking a firmer line on compulsory enrolment. However, as under the current arrangements further action must be taken through the courts, the process is expensive and ties up resources at the VEC, the VGSO and in the courts.

It is not the VEC's desire to raise revenue from the collection of fines for failing to enrol — it is the VEC's desire to have all eligible electors on the roll and able to vote should an election occur. Removal of an elector from the roll and subsequent prosecution will be a last resort after a number of contacts have been unanswered.

Recommendation 12. The VEC recommends that the Parliament considers introducing legislation so that failure to enrol and failure to update enrolment details is an infringeable offence, making the process less expensive and to avoid wasting the resources of the courts, VGSO and the VEC.

Electoral education fund

One of the VEC's core functions under the Electoral Act 2002 is to promote public awareness of electoral matters that are in the general public interest by means of the conduct of education and information programs (S8(2)(f)).

The VEC performs this function through election-specific advertising and communication campaigns and importantly, through targeted electoral education programs initiated as a result of research and analysis and developed in consultation with relevant stakeholder groups. Examples of these programs are:

- Who Decides? - an interactive flash animation, launched in March 2010
- All About Voting - a resource kit to support the integration of electoral education into the teaching of English as a second language
- Voting is for everyone - aimed at dispelling misunderstandings about voting and disabilities
- Passport to Democracy

Analysis of voting patterns and census data after the 2006 State election found that a significant proportion of young Victorians aged 18-25 either were not enrolled to vote, or did not vote even if enrolled.

Further research revealed barriers to the delivery of electoral education in schools, including a lack of teacher confidence in their knowledge of the democratic process, difficulties engaging students in what may be perceived as a dry subject, and a general feeling of students' inability to be able to affect change. To address these issues, the VEC developed Passport to Democracy, a very successful civics and citizenship program for secondary students.

Dynamic and interactive, Passport to Democracy aims to demystify political processes and institutions, and improve students' understanding of the democratic process and their role in shaping society. Students develop a deeper understanding of how decisions that affect them are made, and how they can engage within the community to achieve positive change.

Currently fully funded by the VEC, the Passport to Democracy is a comprehensive resource that includes a teacher's guide, student booklets, stimulus material such as photographs and videos, teacher and student blogs and 'passports' that are awarded to students who participate in the program. On request, the VEC also provides outreach officers to guide teachers in program delivery and to provide professional development.

Passport to Democracy continues to receive positive feedback from students and teachers. Informal evaluation shows an increase in engagement in the democratic process after participation, and an increased interest in enrolment and voting.

Funding of electoral education

The Australian Electoral Commission's Youth Electoral Study showed that students experiencing a voting experience before or as they become of age are more likely to maintain this involvement throughout their lives. The VEC believes that electoral education is crucial to electoral engagement. The VEC has considered a range of ways to address the ongoing funding of Passport to Democracy in conjunction with the development of programs to reach other audiences, and believes that the best solution is the establishment of an Electoral Education Trust to provide funding to support proven electoral education programs on an ongoing basis.

Electoral Education Fund

The VEC collects monies through the enforcement of compulsory voting provisions, and currently returns these funds to consolidated revenue. The direction of these funds to an Electoral Education Trust would serve two purposes:

1. Ongoing funding would be made available for the wider rollout and support of successful programs such as Passport to Democracy.
2. Current budget commitments could be reallocated to research and development of new initiatives to identify and address the needs of other groups, as well as the needs of the general elector group, who must also be kept engaged through up-to-date and relevant education and awareness programs.

The VEC believes that the establishment of an electoral education trust using funds collected through the enforcement of compulsory voting provisions is an appropriate use of funds, and has a responsive synergy.

Electoral education › engagement › fewer infringements › decreased funding

A decrease in voter turnout (or increase in infringements issued) would be an indicator that electoral engagement is needed and the (proportionally changing) Electoral Education Fund would be in place to identify and address the specific areas of need.

Recommendation 13. The VEC recommends that Parliament considers setting up an Electoral Education Fund, using money from the enforcement of compulsory voting program. This fund would be used to build on the success of the program, supporting a rollout of Passport to Democracy to all schools across Victoria.

Last chance to get on the roll

If you've changed address, turned 18 or if you're just not on the roll, you must update your enrolment by 8pm this Tuesday.

To vote at the Victorian State election on Saturday 27 November 2010 you need to be correctly enrolled.

Enrol now if you are an Australian citizen aged 18 or over and you are not enrolled. Update your enrolment if you've changed your permanent residential address or other details.

Enrolling is compulsory. However, if you have never enrolled or have let your details lapse, you will not be penalised if you enrol for this election.

To enrol or update your enrolment you need to complete and return an enrolment form. Forms are available from 131VEC.com.au and at the offices listed here. Completed forms can be returned by fax to 9277 7126 or delivered in person to one of the offices listed here.

To make sure your vote helps shape Victoria, your enrolment form must reach an electoral office within Victoria before 8.00pm on Tuesday 9 November.

Visit 131VEC.com.au or call 131 VEC(832).

Call 9am to 5.30pm Monday to Friday and 9am to 2pm this Saturday.

Victorian State Election

I have returned the writs to Chief Justice Marilyn Warren AC, Lieutenant-Governor of Victoria. The writs were issued by Professor David de Kretser AC, Governor of Victoria on 2 November 2010, for the general election of eighty-eight members of the Legislative Assembly and forty members of the Legislative Council.

Detailed results are now available at vec.vic.gov.au and a summary listing of elected members has been included in this newspaper.

Authorised by S. H. Tully, Electoral Commissioner, 505 Little Collins Street, Melbourne Vic. 3000.

Information for candidates

Nominations are now open for the 2010 Victorian State Election.

Candidates who are not endorsed by a registered political party must nominate with the appropriate election manager. The election manager will supply a Candidate's Kit, which includes a nomination form. Nominations close at 12 noon, Friday 12 November. Late nominations cannot be accepted.

The Victorian Electoral Commission (VEC) will conduct an information session for intending non-party candidates at 2.00pm on Sunday 7 November at the VEC, 505 Little Collins Street, Melbourne.

Registered political parties must nominate candidates at the VEC, Level 8, 505 Little Collins Street, Melbourne. Nominations for party candidates close at 12 noon, Thursday 11 November. Late nominations cannot be accepted.

Additional information for Upper House candidates.

Non-party candidates for the Upper House (Legislative Council) can nominate with any election manager within their region.

Two or more candidates who have nominated for the Upper House may request that their names be grouped on the ballot paper. Group requests must be received at the VEC by 12 noon, Thursday 11 November.

Group voting tickets must be lodged with the VEC by 12 noon, Sunday 14 November and will appear on the VEC website from Monday 15 November.

How-to-vote cards.

If a person or organisation intends to distribute how-to-vote cards on election day, Saturday 27 November, the cards must be registered by the VEC.

Registered how-to-vote cards are the only form of printed electoral material that may be distributed within 400 metres of a voting centre on election day (penalties apply).

The period for submitting how-to-vote cards for registration is Monday 15 November to 12 noon, Friday 19 November.

Organisations or individuals other than registered political parties may submit how-to-vote cards to any election manager.

Registered political parties should submit all their how-to-vote cards for registration to the VEC, Level 8, 505 Little Collins Street, Melbourne.

How-to-vote cards will be available to the public on the VEC website after they are registered.

How-to-vote cards submitted after noon on Friday 19 November cannot be considered.

For more information call the election manager in the electorate where you intend to nominate or distribute how-to-vote cards.

2010 Victorian State Election.

The State Election will be held on 27 November 2010. The Victorian Electoral Commission (VEC) makes postal vote applications available at all post offices, by mail on request and at 131VEC.com.au

Political parties are permitted by law to provide a party postal vote application directly to voters. Should you choose to complete and return a party postal vote application to the party address provided, it will be delivered to the political party which can record your details before forwarding your application to the VEC for processing. The party may also use your details to send you campaign material.

If you wish to vote by post, but would prefer not to disclose your details to a political party, you can obtain a postal vote application from the VEC, or return any political party application directly to the VEC free of charge by addressing it to:

Options for blind and low vision voters

Blind and low vision voters will be able to have their say in the November State Election via automated telephone or touch screen systems. These will be available at early voting centres from Monday 15 November to Friday 26 November during the following hours:

8.30am to 6.00pm Monday to Friday.
9.00am to 2.00pm Saturday 20 November.
8.30am to 8.00pm Thursday 25 November.

Electronically assisted voting will not be available on election day – Saturday 27 November.

Braille ballot papers will also be available by mail for those who would prefer to vote this way – however they will have to register to receive them. If you know someone who may prefer braille ballot papers, please ask them to call 131 832 to register no later than Thursday 1 October.

Only voters who register for this service will be able to receive Braille ballot papers. Further information can be found at 131VEC.com.au

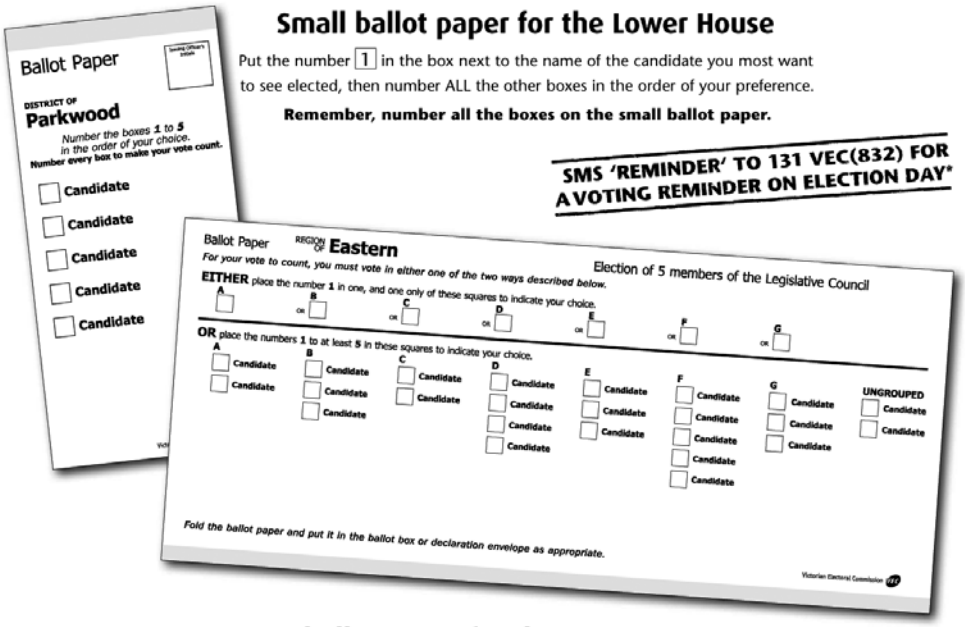
How to vote correctly this Saturday

For your vote to shape Victoria this Saturday, you must fill out your ballot papers correctly.

On election day you'll be given two ballot papers, a small ballot paper for the Lower House (Legislative Assembly) and a large ballot paper for the Upper House (Legislative Council).



Small ballot paper for the Lower House

Put the number 1 in the box next to the name of the candidate you most want to see elected, then number ALL the other boxes in the order of your preference.

Remember, number all the boxes on the small ballot paper.

SMS 'REMINDER' TO 131 VEC(832) FOR A VOTING REMINDER ON ELECTION DAY*

Large ballot paper for the Upper House

For the Upper House you can vote in two ways.

Either: Vote for your preferred party or group of candidates by placing the number 1 in just one of the boxes above the line.
Or: Vote for individual candidates below the line by numbering a minimum of 5 boxes in order of your preferences 1 to 5.
You may continue numbering more than 5 if you wish. Group voting tickets are available on the VEC website and at all voting centres.

Remember, how-to-vote cards are a guide only – you decide your own preferences.

Visit 131VEC.com.au or call 131 VEC(832).

Call 9am to 5.30pm Monday to Friday and 8am to 6pm Saturday (election day).

Victorian State Election

I have returned the writs to Chief Justice Marilyn Warren AC, Lieutenant-Governor of Victoria. The writs were issued by Professor David de Kretser AC, Governor of Victoria on 2 November 2010, for the general election of eighty-eight members of the Legislative Assembly and forty members of the Legislative Council.

Detailed results are now available at vec.vic.gov.au and a summary listing of elected members has been included in this newspaper.

Authorised by S. H. Tully, Electoral Commissioner, 505 Little Collins Street, Melbourne Vic. 3000.

Introduction

This report contains detailed election results for individual electorates in the 2010 Victorian State election.

How votes are counted

District first-preference votes

The first-preference votes for each candidate are counted in voting centres on election night. First-preference declaration votes (such as postal and absent votes) are counted in the election office on election night and over the following days as the votes reach the election offices.

Two-candidate-preferred counts

On election night, a two-candidate preferred (2CP) count is conducted in voting centres after the first-preference count. The votes of the "minor" candidates are sorted according to the preferences on the ballot papers to the two candidates whom the VEC considers the most likely to be the two leading candidates. After election night, there is a progressive 2CP count of declaration votes. The aims of the two-candidate-preferred count are to give an early indication of the result of the election, and to provide information on a 2CP basis for each voting centre.

Two-party-preferred counts

The purpose of the two-party-preferred vote is to show, for each electorate and for the State as a whole, how the vote was divided between the major parties (the ALP and the Liberal and National parties), taking into account the preferences of people who vote for other parties and independents.

Rechecks

Rechecks are conducted in all electorates after election day and involve a complete recheck of all ballot papers for correct counting and sorting. Typically, recheck results vary by a few votes from the preliminary count results.

Preference distributions for districts

In districts where no one candidate has more than half of the first preference votes, a preference distribution is conducted to determine the result. Once a recheck is completed, the formal distribution of preferences is conducted. Votes are distributed from excluded candidates to the remaining candidates according to the voters' preferences, until one candidate has more than half of the votes. Preference distributions are conducted on a district-wide basis.

Recounts

If a result is very close, a candidate may request a recount, or the Electoral Commissioner may decide to conduct one. All the votes are counted again, and disputed votes are reserved for the Electoral Commissioners decision. Recounts are conducted on a district-wide basis. There were no recounts at the 2010 State election.

Region first-preference votes

First-preference votes, both above and below-the-line, and informal votes are counted in voting centres and election offices on election night and over the following days. The above-the-line, below-the-line votes and informal votes are parcelled and sent to the Region Recheck centre where they are rechecked. Ballot papers remain in their particular parcel and are not amalgamated during this process. Both preliminary and rechecked results are entered into the VEC's election management system.

Computer count

Region ballot papers marked below-the-line are transferred to the computer count centre. The preferences on each of the below-the-line votes are data-entered. All the preferences are then re-entered for verification. Any ballot papers that are found to be informal or are formal marked above-the-line are separated and entered into the system individually.

Preference distributions for regions

Once all the above-the-line and below-the-line data and informal totals are entered, the computer-count application produces a report for each region, showing the transfer of surpluses of elected candidates and distribution of preferences of excluded candidates up to the election of five candidates for each region.

Recounts

If a result is very close, a candidate may request a recount, or the Electoral Commissioner may decide to conduct one. Recounts are conducted on a region-wide basis. There were no recounts required for Regions at the 2010 State election,

Results for each electorate

The section for each electorate contains:

- A summary of the number of electors and votes
- First-preference votes for each voting centre and for other types of votes (postal, absent and so on). These are rechecked votes
- Two-candidate-preferred votes for each voting centre and for other types of votes for all districts. These are based on the preliminary vote counts
- Two-party-preferred counts for those districts where 2CP or preference distribution results did not show how the vote was divided between the ALP and the Liberal and National parties
- Distributions of preferences for electorates (where conducted).

The CD attached to this report contains the Report to Parliament on the 2010 State election, Parts 1 and 2, along with Final Region first preference results (detailed). The reports show for each voting centre or vote parcel the total ATL votes per group, total BTL votes per candidate, and total informal votes.
